SUIT OVER HALLIAN REWARD

ACCIDENT MARS 1ST CUP TRIAL

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—At 1 o'clock the sea was so rough that several big schooners, with pleasure parties aboard, following the first official America cup trial, put back to Newport. With both yachts on a starboard tack in a long thrash, the Resolute was leading Vanitie for the first mark, fifteen miles to windward, when they were lost in a fog.

By HARRY C. THOMAS.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—A fog that lay over the water at dawn cleared later in the forenoon and conditions were favorable for starting the first official race between the cup yachts, Resolute, Vanitie and Defiance.

The fleet of the Eastern Yacht Club, which had charge of today's race, got their anchors up shortly after 9 o'clock and the final touches were put on the rig of the three cup boats. At that hour a south-west breeze was blowing off the course at a rate of about fifteen miles an hour.

DEFIANCE HAS AN ACCIDENT.

The starting point of the race was set for four miles southeast of the lightship. The Defiance, which has come to be known on the "Sleuthe cup boat," was the first of the yachts to poke her nose past the lightship.

Carrying a jib and mainsail, the Defiance sailed smartly until she was hit by a heavy sea. Then her big sail was seen to flap and she came about and sailed toward the lightship. Shortly afterwards she took a tow. Her peak halyard blocks were carried away.

The Vanitie was the second racer to appear. She carried a jib and mainsail. The Resolute came next, with a jib, mainsail and a gaff topsail.

Warned by the accident to the Defiance, the start of the race was temporarily postponed, the regatta committee on the Dillings yacht Vanoda hoisting a code flag giving notice of this action. When the flag went up, the wind, blowing fresh from the southwest, was throwing up foam over the bows of the Resolute and Vanitie.

15 MILES OUT AND BACK.

At 11:59 o'clock the signal for a fifteen-mile thrash to windward toward Block Island, for the first mark, and return was hoisted by the committee. The start was set for 11:45.

The Resolute hoisted a big club topsail, the Vanitie her working topsail, and the two skippers began to jockey for position.

The Resolute was in the windward position at 11:15 when the starting whistle was blown. The boats were close together as they started. The unofficial time of the start was:

Vanitie	11:45:27
Resolute	11:45:31

Summer Coming, Says Forecaster

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The wet, cold and generally dreary weather which has brought dismay to thousands of vacationists and heavy financial loss to Summer resorts and railroads for the past week is at an end, the government experts announced today. Real Summer weather with plenty of sunshine will be in order throughout the Atlantic States for some time. The Washington weather wizards explain that the long siege of cloudy, foggy and depressing weather has been due entirely to an "on-shore" wind which has driven rain-soaked clouds over the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Florida. The winds are now changing, and within a few hours will be blowing the clouds out to sea again, and the Atlantic Summer resorts will reap their long delayed harvest.

Chicago Commercial Men Meet President

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The great business interests of the Middle West, centring in Chicago, today had their innings at the White House. A group of members of the Chicago Association of Commerce came to tell President Wilson what the West thinks of his proposed trust legislation and to discuss the commercial and industrial conditions. Some changes in the administration trust program were urged. The delegation was headed by Joseph H. Defrees, president of the Association of Commerce.

Oxford Rubber Co. Receiver Named

Warren MacPherson of Cambridge was appointed receiver of the Oxford Rubber Company of that city by Judge Dodge in the United States District Court today. Liabilities of the firm are about $45,000 and the assets are said to exceed that amount. The receiver will continue the business.

Fire Brings Salem Family from Europe

G. F. Bevlin of Salem, with his family arrived home from Europe today, landing in Boston from the Caronia. They returned, cutting short a stay abroad, on hearing of the Salem fire which destroyed two factory buildings owned by Mr. Bevlin in Salem. They lived on Lafayette street, which was swept by the fire.

Foreign Famine May Send "Plates of" Up

Beans may be expected to go to fifteen cents a mess in Boston beaneries, according to Paul Strauss of Budapest, Austria Hungary, who landed today from the Caronia. He said the Hungarian bean crop has failed; and that Hungarian beans fill many a steaming plate in Boston every year.

Suspend Sentence for Assault on Wife

Martin J. McCarthy of No. 99 Longwood avenue, Rxbury, charged with assaulting his wife, was today given a suspended sentence of four months in the House of Correction.

2 CLAIM POLICE $100 FOR PROBE CAPTURE OUTRAGE

A fight was opened today by claimants for the $100 reward offered by Joseph Hallian for information leading to the capture of his daughter, Fern Hallian, and Louis Elsman, Mr. Hallian's chauffeur, with whom the girl eloped last week.

The two claimants are:

Mrs. Julia Roper, telegraph operator at a Portland hotel, who recognized the couple from pictures in the AMERICAN and notified the police so that they were captured.

Daniel Brassait, the Boston chauffeur who drove the pair to South Lawrence to catch the Portland train, and then notified the father that they had gone to Portland.

Mrs. Roper said today: 'Mr. Hallian telephoned me last Sunday and said: 'The money is yours.' I believe I am entitled to it.

"But for the fact that I was reading an AMERICAN when they approached my desk, I should never have noticed the girl's resemblance to the pictures of Fern Hallian. If I had not recognized her, they would have gone free indefinitely. In fact, they were then supposed to be in Canada or on the Canadian line. I believe I was entirely responsible for the capture, and therefore I believe I am entitled to the reward."

SUIT AGAINST HALLIAN.

On the other hand, Edward M. Dangel, a Boston attorney, today wrote the AMERICAN:

"I beg to inform you that I have this day brought suit against Joseph Hallian, father of Fern Hallian, who recently eloped with Louis Elsman, on behalf of Daniel Brassait, the chauffeur, who drove the above couple to South Lawrence, to recover the $100 offered as a reward by the father, Joseph Hallian, to the person giving such information as would lead to the detection of the elopers."

Mr. Hallian, the girl's father, said today:

"I am surprised there is any question about the reward. Mrs. Roper appears to me to have the best claim to it. But certainly if Mr. Brassait can show he is entitled to it, he shall have it. The whole matter is in the hands of my attorney, Michael Sughrue."

A dynamite bomb partially wrecked the home of Richard S. Stout, assistant superintendent of the Heywood Brothers and Wakefield Company, at No. 4 Bennett street, Wakefield, early today. The the explosion was caused by a bomb is the decision of the State police, according to William J. Stout, who was in the house at the time of the explosion.

A strong smell of powder and bits of iron imbedded in the kitchen ceiling make it certain that a bomb caused the explosion, in the opinion of William Stout who says the house was shaken and damaged to the extent of $1,000. The explosion was heard half a mile away. The police are working on the theory that strikers from the plant where Stout was employed, and which recently shut down, may be responsible for the outrage.

There were four people in the house when the explosion occurred. Mr. Stout, his two sons, and his housekeeper, Mrs. Mary Gage. They were all upstairs and are unhurt.

ROUSED BY FALLING GLASS.

William J. Stout, son of Richard Stout, told the story of what took place. He said:

"I was awakened by the sound of falling glass on the kitchen floor. 'Burglars' immediately entered my mind. I hastily pulled on my trousers, and started to leave my room to awaken my father and brother George, when the door to my father's room opened and he whispered to me, 'William, what was that?' I replied that I thought that a burglar was downstairs. We roused George and then stood in the upper hallway holding a hurried conference.

"Suddenly, without warning, there was a violent explosion. The floor on which we were standing seemed to fairly rise and sink. A mantel clock and a marble ornament at my elbow fell to the floor with a crash, and there was a terrible ripping sound accompanied by the sound of falling glass.

"I started to go down stairs, but was confronted by a dense smoke which had the odor of blasting powder. 'The house must be on fire,' I yelled. Telephone for the fire department.'

"Mrs. Gage emerged from her room over the dining-room and asked me what was the matter. 'I don't know; let's see,' I replied.

"When we entered the kitchen a scene of desolation greeted us. The clock had stopped at 1:47. The glass was broken and the pendulum was lying in the middle of the floor. The window sill near the sink was shattered to splinters and there was little left of the gas range, which stood under the window.

DOORS BLOWN OFF.

"The doors were blown off their hinges, taking part of the casings with them. Great slabs of wall plaster were down. A leaf had been split

'FURIES' PELT KING AND QUEEN

GLASGOW, Scotland, July 8.—The visit of King George and Queen Mary to municipalities in Dumbartonshire today was marred by the activities of the militant suffragettes.

At Clydebank while the King and Queen were receiving an address from representatives of the municipality four "furies" suddenly appeared at a nearby window with suffragette banners and a big quantity of literature, with which they began pelting the crowd and their majesties.

When the police tried to enter they found the doors barred. Through megaphones the women shrieked: 'Your Majesty, you must stop forcibly feeding women. You must stop torturing us!'

The police broke down the doors, arrested the women and the ceremonies were continued.

At Alexandria all the elaborate street decorations which had been erected in honor of the visit of the King and Queen were torn down by women and trampled in the mud. There was an exciting incident in which the suffragettees had no hand during the royal procession through Alexandria.

A runaway horse was dashing down the street toward the carriage which conveyed the King and Queen when it was caught by a mounted policeman who stunned it with his baton.

AS MRS. PANKHURST TAKES CHARGE SHE IS AGAIN ARRESTED

LONDON, July 8.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was arrested for the eleventh time today as she was leaving the offices of the Women's Social Union, where she had gone to inaugurate a fresh campaign in behalf of the cause.

She was taken at once to Holloway Jail, from which institution she was recently released on account of illness brought on by a hunger strike.

Mrs. Pankhurst was last arrested in May while taking part in a raid on Buckingham palace. At that time she was out of jail on temporary ticket of leave. The arrest today was made under the provisions of the cat and mouse act.

Mrs. Pankhurst, who has been in retirement since she was released from Holloway Jail, went to the headquarters of the militants' organization in Kingsway, where she publicly resumed her duties as executive.

The court room at Old Bailey was crowded with women spectators when the quartet were brought into the prisoners' dock. As though by prearranged signal the four prisoners started to scream and struggle. They threw things at the judge and prosecutor, while the judge's exhortations for order were lost in the uproar.

Finding it impossible to continue the trial the court ordered the women removed to their cells. Fighting with maniacal fury, the prisoners were dragged bodily from the courtroom while the suffragettes in the galleries hooted and yelled.

An attempt of two militant suffragettes to blow up with a bomb the birthplace of Robert Burns at Ayr, Scotland, was frustrated today by the vigilance of a watchman. One was captured but the other got away.

In the afternoon the four women were again arraigned and the case was conducted with the utmost speed by court and counsel. Two were discharged for lack of evidence. Two were sentenced to three months each. Women spectators again tried to create an uproar, but were ejected.

Two of the prominent figures in the Bailey death puzzle: Hazel Combes, who contradicts a part of Mrs. Carman's story, and, below, Madeline Bailey, daughter of the slain woman, who says her mother never mentioned Dr. Carman's name.

SAYS WIFE DID NOT SHOOT MRS. BAILEY

NEW YORK, July 8.—Three sensational developments came out through Acting Coroner Norton's inquest today into the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey in the office of Dd. Edwin Carman at Freeport last week.

First: It was testified that Mrs. Carman claimed her husband was meeting other women, and that she had seen him kiss a nurse.

Second: A witness was produced who heard the shot fired, turned, and saw a woman hurrying away from the Carman home.

Third: This witness swore he did not believe this woman was Mrs. Carman.

The inquest ended, but no verdict was returned. Coroner Norton would not discuss when a verdict might be expected, but District Attorney Smith declared the evidence pointed to one person, and that it wil lbe laid before the Grand Jury tomorrow.

Gaston Boissannault, manager of the company which installed the dictagraph in the Carman home in order that Mrs. Carman might spy on her husband, was the first witness called. Describing Mrs. Carman's visit to his office on May 19, the witness said:

"After inquiring as to the cost of the apparatus and how payments might be made, she said her husband was dreammaking, that some of his employees were stealing from her and that she wished to find out who they were."

The witness said he had accused Mrs. Carman of lying, and that she admitted this, then saying:

"I am having domestic troubles at home and I want it for that purpose."

On June 23, the witness said Mrs. Carman returned, paid $50 and told him to install the dictagraph.

SUSPECTED HUSBAND.

"She said," continued Boissannault, "that she had arranged for her husband and herself to take a trip to New York for a few days and that I could install the instrument during that time.

"Mrs. Carman told me that she suspected her husband was meeting many women.

"She said her husband was meeting women on the outside and that she saw him kissing a nurse in the office. She told me that after she got evidence against the doctor she was going to put it up to him and that after that she and her husband would occupy separate rooms. She said she would never get a divorce because of her little girl."

"Mrs. Carman later complained about being unable to hear over the dictagraph.

"She told me that very often the doctor would talk to his woman callers in a whisper. She did not tell me who these were, but they were many women."

Ten-year-old Elizabeth Carman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carman, was the second witness. While she testified her father stood near the courtroom door and listened atten-

TO CARRY CLAIM IN HALLIAN CASE TO THE COURTS

rue, and I shall be guided by him in giving the reward."

Louis Elsman, the chauffeur, got into more trouble today when Patrolmen Clifford E. Smith and Robert Coughlin of the Roxbury Crossing station, summoned him into court for overspeeding his machine on Columbus avenue and Eighteen square, Roxbury, on June 24. He must appear in court on July 15 to answer to this new charge against him.

Smith and Coughlin are known in the Roxbury section as the "automobile sleuths." They kept after Elsman as he guided his car, in which were three young women, through different streets in their division. Today the officers appeared in the Roxbury court and swore out a summons for Elsman. They told him to be in court today and he failed to appear.

PRESS NEW CHARGES.

Secret charges in addition to that of abduction are being pushed by Halliah and Chief Reynolds of the Hull police against Elsman, the chauffeur.

It was reported today Halliah and Chief Reynolds were attempting to secure a warrant against Elsman in the Quincy District Court. The abduction charge was brought in the Hingham Court, and the basis of the new complaint is being kept a secret.

It is said Halliah and Chief Reynolds are trying to convince the authorities that Elsman is guilty of another offense committed within the jurisdiction of the Quincy Court, but it is said today that no action will be taken or nothing made public until after counsel for both sides have conferred on the full proceedings.

Halifax Folk to Hold Benefit for Salem

Halifax has arranged a benefit to be given at the Town Hall, Friday evening, this week, in aid of the Salem sufferers. The committee is headed by Sergeant Sol. Bucharach of the Boston and Providence Artillery, a well known resident of Boston and Halifax. The entertainment will consist of a musicale, recitations and other features to be furnished by local talent. The patronesses are of the following: Mrs. Bucharach, Mrs. J. Thompson, Mrs. Benjamin Lincoln, Mrs. C. J. Ramsdell, Mrs. Frank Lyons, Mrs. Frank Bancroft, Mrs. George Estes, Mrs. Jesse Perez and Mrs. Pearl Wilcomb.

Autoists Fined in Roxbury Court Today

William De Witt of Jamaica Plain, Charles M. Field of West Somerville, Arthur F. Devan of Milton, John F. King, Jr., of Brockton, and George H. Whiting of Brush Hill road, Milton, were each found guilty of overspeeding their automobiles in the Roxbury Police Court today and fined $5. Donald Cuff of Cambridge, for violating traffic rules and regulations, was given a suspended sentence of $20 to allow him to pay. William F. Hatch, for a similar offense, was fined $5 and allowed time to pay. The case against Charles Ofner of No. 418 Massachusetts avenue, was filed. The court against Charles A. Newhall of No. 1 Sewall road, Brookline, was continued for a week.

7 Hurt in Wreck on Central Vermont

SHELDON, Vt., July 8.—Seven persons were injured, one seriously, and many passengers were shaken up and bruised when a Central Vermont train ran into a washout south of Sheldon Springs. The accident happened at what is known as Chadwick Cut.

A sharp attack by Senator Vardaman of Mississippi was hurled against Postmaster General Burleson today.

The fireman was badly scalded, a mail clerk, named Bishop, was painfully hurt. The engineer, Ingraham, and several passengers received minor injuries. All were taken to a hospital at St. Albans.

New War Paint on Powhatan's Head

Chief Powhatan's wooden head, which guards the entrance to the old Tammany Club rooms on 23d street, has received a new coat of white tinted gloss paint, a color brown and some gold tint, and is more or less glistening in the sunlight over the front. The head disappeared several months ago and caused considerable comment among the "Bunnies" as to what became of it. Those on the inside say the head was merely given a coat of war paint for the Fall fights.

Hustis Sees Big B. & M. Opportunity

"The work of building up the Boston & Maine railroad offers splendid opportunities for service and strongly appeals to me," declared James H. Hustis, president of the 52-mile road, who has been appointed head of the Boston & Maine receivership. He will take up his new duties on August 15.

from the oak kitchen table. Every window in the kitchen was blown out.

"Directly under the window near the sink was an ugly hole through to the cellar. Water was spurting in the cellar where the feed-pipe had been shattered by the explosion. A clothes-horse filled with freshly-iron linen was a rumpled mass in the centre of the room.

"When we looked down cellar we found that the floor-beams, many of them, had been split lengthwise by the force of the concussion and were badly splintered in the vicinity of the hole under the kitchen window. There was a pool of water on the cement floor.

"Upstairs in the bathroom, over the kitchen, the floor was badly sprung and the tub had been lifted from the waste pipe underneath. The plumbing was in a bad way.

"In the bedrooms, lamp chimneys were shattered and pictures loosened from the walls. So great was the rush of air when the thing exploded that the windows were blown completely out of the library, near the kitchen end of the house, and one whole upper sash was blown out of the parlor window on the front of the house.

"Pieces of metal which I found in the ceiling and walls of the kitchen smelled to me just like the first strong smoke which filled the house after the explosion.

MR. STOUT MYSTIFIED.

"From the way in which the explosive blew down through the floor, the State police remarked that the exact explosive used might have been dynamite.

"The window through which the explosive was evidently dropped was on the extreme rear of the house, and all the windows in the kitchen it was the only one which had no screen.

Richard S. Stout said:

"I am utterly at a loss to account for this affair. I have had no threats of any kind, and the thing came without the slightest intimation. I cannot understand why they should have made me a target for their spite against the company by which I am employed. I always used all the help alike, and never made any distinctions between the foreign and American employes.

"I a most conscious of having made an enemy through my connection with the Heywood Brothers and Wakefield Company. I haven't the slightest idea who is responsible for this brigandage.

"Besides the danger to our lives and that of my housekeeper, Mrs. Gage, there is nearly a thousand dollars worth of damage to the property. I have had the insurance man here and he tells me that I cannot recover anything for the damage."

Mrs. Melvin Anderson of No. 12 Bennett street, five houses away from the scene of the explosion, and one of Mr. Stout's tenants, said:

SHOOK THE NEIGHBORHOOD.

"I happened to be up and around at a quarter before two this morning, tending to the children's wants, when I and my husband heard a terrific bang. It seemed as if it was only next door. We looked out the window and could see people coming from all directions. Next, we saw the fire apparatus draw up in front of the Stout house.

"When our milkman came at 6 he said that he heard the explosion at Montrose, fully half a mile away.

"We dressed and hastened to the Stout home in time to view the havoc wrought. We saw nothing of any suspicious characters who would appear to be implicated in the bomb-throwing."

Sleuth in Nightshirt Runs Down Two Men

CHICAGO, July 7.— Detective Sergeant James Conick, of No. 5727 South Michigan avenue, in his nightshirt, chased two men for several blocks and captured them at East Fifty-eighth street and Indiana avenue. The nightshirt chase created a sensation. Conick was aroused from his slumber by the shouts for aid of a watchman, who had discovered the men breaking into a tool box in a new building.

Wm. Rockefeller's Health 'Only Fair'

NEW YORK, July 8.—William Rockefeller, whose lawyers said recently that it would be his death if the government put him on the witness stand, walked briskly to the elevator at No. 165 Broadway on his way to the Union Pacific board meeting. Friends observed his eye was bright and his face bore a fine tan.

"How is your health now?" a reporter asked.

"Thank you, only fair," said Mr. Rockefeller.

COLONEL OPENS CAMPAIGN WITH CONFERENCES

NEW YORK, July 8.—Colonel Roosevelt opened his political campaign today. Refreshed with a week's rest the colonel came in from Oyster Bay for the first of an important series of conferences with national leaders of the Progressive party at National Progressive headquarters.

Progressive leaders from Syracuse, Portland, Me., and Colorado were waiting to talk with him and seek his co-operation in the several States represented. The first to get the ear of the former President were the members of the Syracuse delegation, six in number. This delegation was headed by Horace S. Wilkinson, who said he would try to get the colonel to make a speech in Syracuse.

Clarence D. Dodge, chairman of the State Progressive committee of Colorado, came for the same purpose. He wants Colonel Roosevelt to visit Colorado and speak in behalf of the Progressives. If he can make only one speech it will be better than none at all, said Mr. Dodge.

Halbert P. Gardner, a member of the national Progressive committee, from Maine, and Irving E. Vernon, chairman of the State Progressive committee of Maine, came to secure a pledge from the Colonel that he would make a speech in Portland.

Among the other visitors at headquarters were Frederick M. Davenport, ex-State Senator and former candidate for United States Senator on the Progressive ticket, of Utica, N. Y.; Charles Aronstein and Lucien S. Bonheim.

Beginning with the opening gun today the entire national situation so far as it pertains to the Progressive party will be canvassed by Colonel Roosevelt, State by State. New York State Progressives have not yet given up hope of having Colonel Roosevelt run for Governor of this State, and they are bringing strong influence upon him. While the Colonel was conferring with the Syracuse delegation, Theodore Douglas Robinson, Progressive State chairman of New York, issued a brief statement in which he declared that there are no present indications that Progressives will fuse with the Wilson Democrats in this State.

JOHN D. IS 75 TODAY, BUT HE FEELS LIKE 60

NEW YORK, July 8.—"All days look alike to me now. I enjoy playing golf and I enjoy my friends. I particularly enjoy the work on my estate, and that I can give so many men employment. I like to see things moving, and I hope to keep them moving for many years to come."

These reflections, made by John D. Rockefeller, are the message of his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary today, which will be accepted by him as any other day, and is not being marked by a special celebration.

Numerous congratulations from friends in various parts of the country and Europe were received by Mr. Rockefeller.

Mr. Rockefeller observed his birthday by playing golf with a few friends and by riding over his estate and superintending the work of his small army of employes. Because of the absence of his organist there was no organ recital on the family gathering at the evening meal, as Mrs. Rockefeller and her sister are not well, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and his family are at Seal Harbor.

But the day Mr. Rockefeller's friends say, was not a lonesome one to him. He prefers to lead a simple life, and today was of the strictest simplicity.

Mr. Rockefeller is apparently in good health, and plays golf every day, rain or shine. He recently told friends that he does not feel over sixty, and cannot believe he is seventy-five. At golf his game is as strong as ever, and he plays eighteen holes nearly every day.

Because of the I. W. W. demonstrations Mr. Rockefeller is trying to avoid unnecessary publicity at this time. His estate is being strongly guarded. Additional guards are on duty today, it being feared that strangers might try to call because of Mr. Rockefeller's birthday.

Educators to Get Suffrage Resolve

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 8.—The resolutions committee has agreed to report to the National Education Association a resolution approving woman suffrage and equal pay for teachers, regardless of sex.

$1.60 Wall Street's Suffrage Donation

NEW YORK, July 8.—Only $1.60 of suffrage enthusiasm was the total amount shown by Wall street yesterday in response to the impassioned pleas of Miss Alberta Hill, Miss Eleanor Brannan and other pretty young speakers. The suffragists spoke from a decorated car. Miss Hill asked the big crowd of curb brokers and male clerks for a contribution to the Summer campaign. One dollar and sixty cents was all she could collect.

$30,000 Witherell Gift to Y. M. C. A.

NEW YORK, July 8.—To perpetuate the memory of her husband, Mrs. Nathaniel Witherell of this city and Greenwich is going to build in the latter place the most up-to-date Y. M. C. A. building in the country. Plans which have just been finished call for a three-story building, to be erected at a cost of $250,000 to $300,000. Contracts may be let today.

WEBSTER TO FLY AT NANTASKET SUNDAY FOR THE AMERICAN

Next Sunday, at Nantasket, you may see how nearly your dreams have come true; for Clifford Webster is to fly there, winging up from Marblehead in his giant, arrow-shaped Burgess-Dunne hydro-aeroplane for a series of feats above the thronged beach.

The AMERICAN invites you all to see Webster fly there for you to see—there to show you that the airship is no longer a dream but a reality.

Those who saw him at Revere last Saturday need no persuasion. They will go to Nantasket to see him again. But as an added inducement to those who don't know Webster and what he can do, the AMERICAN promises a surprise in connection with his flight—a surprise that it will be worth your while to share.

Tomorrow you will hear more of this. In fact, tomorrow's AMERICAN will have, it now appears, the announcement of the completed plans for the flight—just how you can see Webster, and when and where.

The long, slender body of the plane is not unlike a covered canoe, with a seat in the bow for Webster, and another tiny cockpit for the passenger.

The wings droop at an angle on either side, and also extend backward instead of straight out in the other types. Also the rear edge of the planes where they meet at the centre is bent sharply downward. The planes at the tips of the wings are level; but a hinged portion may be elevated or depressed, and it is this that makes it possible to turn and bank as Webster did at Revere, Saturday.

The remarkable stability of the machine is the result of the curious form of the planes. The planes are the invention of Lieutenant J. B. Dunne, an Englishman, and he and W. Starling Burgess are associated in the manufacture of the planes. Their success has been so marked that even the United States government has planned to purchase the Burgess-Dunne plane.

One of the remarkable features of the Burgess-Dunne plane which Webster flies is its lack of a rudder. The early planes had a "tail" behind, and another similar "tail" ahead. These complicated affairs were used for steering and for keeping on an even keel.

But the Burgess-Dunne has neither a forward nor a rear rudder. When Webster wants to climb, he so shifts the levers on which his hands rest that the ailerons, or hinged surfaces on the tips of the wings, are slanted upward. Thus they resist the air above the plane, turn its rear edge down, and the plane climbs. Reversing this causes the plane to dive. Elevating one aileron and depressing the other will result in a turn in either direction. The machine banks itself, and when it banks, turns. In the old-type plane it was necessary to shift the rudder for the turn, then manipulate the ailerons at the same time.

DUCHESS URGES VOTE IN SPEECH AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—"Home hotels" for working girls and votes for women as a means of bringing about necessary economic reforms were advocated today by the Duchess of Marlborough at a conference of women reformers at Marble House, the residence of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, mother of the Duchess. The function, which was a social affair of a kind new to Newport, was also intended as a reception to the Duchess, who is active in reform work in England.

In opening the conference Mrs. Belmont spoke entirely upon the present day attitude towards the relationship of men and women. The time is rapidly passing, she said, when a married woman might be referred to as "any man's wife." The women of tomorrow will be too independent to tolerate any such expression.

"And so I open this conference," said Mrs. Belmont, "by reminding you that once upon a time when referring to a woman it was not only the custom but the usual method of endowing her with respectability to speak of her as belonging to some man—his mother, his sister, his wife, his daughter; and later on, when the sturdy oak had fallen, his relic.

URGES UNITED WORK.

"The women who have traveled from the four corners of the United States to confer with us can claim relationship to men who have won honor and fame and whose achievements have made the nation their debtor, and yet in not one instance is it necessary to introduce our speakers as belonging to any one."

Mrs. Belmont then enumerated the work which is being done by women reformers, her remarks being brief.

The most of the address of the Duchess was taken up with a description of the home for prisoners' wives and children which she founded in London, and of the hotel which she endowed for working girls. After describing the need for working girls and advocating their construction wherever women are compelled to toil, she said:

"It is in order to obtain such reforms and others of equal importance that we women are asking for the vote. Those of us who are engaged in any form of social service realize that, without legislation, individual and voluntary work can accomplish but little and must necessarily be sporadic. I therefore close by wishing those of you who have labored strenuously in many fields bearing the torch of civilization and progress a speedy and successful ending of the great work of women's enfranchisement which you have undertaken."

NOTED WOMEN PRESENT.

Among those invited to come and address the conference and to meet the Duchess were: Kate M. Gordon of New Orleans, president of the Southern States Woman Suffrage Conference; Helen R. R. Robinson, a member of the Colorado State Senate; Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of the Chicago public schools; Mary M. Bartelme, assistant judge of the Chicago Juvenile Court; Katherine B. Davis, commissioner of corrections, New York city; Maud Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America; Julia C. Lathrop, chief of the Federal Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., and Rose Schneidermann, vice-president of the Women's Trade Union League.

Green Acre Trustees Unfriendly to Her, Says Miss Farmer

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 8.—"If the trustees of the Green Acre Fellowship are my friends now, why did they refuse Professor Schmidt permission to speak in the Green Acre grounds Sunday?" asked Miss Sarah Farmer, founder of the Green Acre colony at Eliot, Me., today in reply to the statement sent out by the trustees of the Green Acre Fellowship.

"He was there at my express invitation. I never saw a man show grief more seriously than Professor Schmidt did when he was refused the privilege of speaking. I had always supposed that Mr. Ober was my friend, but I understand he and Alfred Lunt caused Professor Schmidt as he was speaking outside the Green Acre gate, and neither recognized him nor stopped to listen."

More Assaults in Pittsburgh Strike

PITTSBURGH, July 8.—Several Westinghouse strikers today attacked two workmen on their way to the East Pittsburgh shops when the pair refused to join the non-workers. William Strang, foreman, and assistant, Matt Berger, were the strikers' targets, the former suffering a probable fractured skull from a flying brick. State constabulary troopers arrested three alleged assailants. Stanley Fialek, the East Pittsburgh workman who was last night assaulted by an unidentified band, is in a serious condition.

EXPERTS BAFFLED BY "MYSTERY GIRL" WHO IS STILL IN STUPOR

Two studies of the "Amnesia Girl." Note in the full face portrait the extraordinary intellectuality of the face, with wide, clear eyes and a broad forehead. The profile reveals strength of character in the prominent nose and square, firm chin.

Relatives of the "mystery girl," who has been identified as Miss Maria H. Stanley of Waterford, Me., are reported to be on their way to Boston today to confer with Dr. Henry M. Adler, chief of staff at the Psychopathic Hospital, as to what is to be done with the young woman.

She is under observation in a private ward at the hospital. Her condition is such that it is deemed inadvisable to give her into the care of her family and she is expected to be kept at the hospital for another week or ten days. The case is one of the most baffling in the history of the institution, and as yet the physicians have failed to successfully diagnose the girl's peculiar malady.

The patient is nineteen years old. She is the daughter of Freeman Stanley, a farmer at Waterford, Me. She has two sisters. Her identification was established by Dr. H. W. Watson, a veterinary, of Haverhill, who formerly spent his vacations on the Stanley farm in Maine and by whom one of the Stanley girls was employed.

Upon entering the observatory dormitory at the hospital Dr. Watson, who recognized the girl immediately, said: "Hello, Maria."

The girl, who was looking away from the entrance in a dreamy manner, turned quickly at the mention of her name, the physicians declared, and there was a momentary response-ive flash of recognition in her eyes for the first time since she has been at the institution. It disappeared almost as quickly as it came and the girl again became unresponsive and returned to the phlegmatic stupor, punctuated with sudden rambling talkative periods as displayed since her arrival.

HEIRESS IN FANCY.

Miss Stanley is well known in Worcester, where she has lived about a year. She labored under the hallucination that she was an heiress and for the past eight months was being treated for a mental affection by Dr. George W. Reid of that city. The girl's peculiar actions in Worcester was brought to the attention of Chief of Police George H. Hill by a social worker who learned about the supposed heiress living in a Main street lodging house under conditions that did not accord with her station in life, if she was a real heiress.

Chief Hill made an investigation, and the young woman then said that her name was Mary H. Stanley and that she was the daughter of a Mr. Stanley of East Waterford, Me. She said she had been taken from her Maine home to California by a wealthy aunt, whose estate she was to inherit.

She claimed this aunt took her to New York to live with a family named Huntington, and she took that name, but she did not like the treatment given to her in the Huntington house and ran away and went to Worcester.

Later she said her real name was Gould and that she was an adopted daughter of Dr. Watson in Haverhill.

Chief Hill says he was convinced she was not telling the truth about herself, but as she was not violating any law he could not do anything further than to investigate her story.

She lived for a time on Kendall street, Worcester, and later in Greendale with a Hovey family at No. 25 Francis street. Several months ago she went to live with Mrs. Shipland and Mrs. Durkee on Murray avenue, Worcester, and won her way into their affections by the confidence she placed in them.

German Press Raps Albanian Scandal, Backing Williams

BERLIN, July 8.—A section of the German press unreservedly agrees with George Fred Williams that conditions in Albania can only be described as a "scandal." The Berliner Morgen Post, in an article headed "The Albanian Scandal—How long is it yet to last?" says:

"The Albanian fiasco evidently is to go on without end. This new State, the grandiose creation of the great powers, is a lovely country. Europe from day to day is regaled with a scandal which is growing more grotesque and miserable every hour.

"The latest from the scene of this international tragic comedy is the fighting between the German and Austrian volunteers.

"Meanwhile Prenk Bib Doda wants more money, and threatens to take his army back home unless he gets 100,000 francs a week. Having stolen 60,000 head of cattle on route from Scutari to the south, he probably will steal what's left on his way back."

ANARCHISTS KEEP BODIES FROM BURIAL

NEW YORK, July 8.—Alexander Berkman, head of the anarchist organization that is striving to hold the bodies of the bomb explosion victims of Saturday, balked the city official's demand that the bodies be buried today. Digging up a health regulation that requires positive identification of all bodies he forced delay in the order that the bodies should be buried by 10 o'clock this morning.

Berkman pointed out that portions of the bodies of Arthur Caron, Chas Hansen and Carl Berg were still missing and that the men's families were unable to make a complete identification.

After leaving the office of Health Commissioner Goldwater, Berkman said that official had granted a postponement of burial. The anarchist chief declared that if burial were ultimately forced the bodies would be cremated and the ashes carried in urns in the demonstration that is planned for Saturday.

Gifford's Parents Seek Venue Change for Second Trial

ALBANY, N. Y., July 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Gifford of Hudson came here to see their son, Malcolm, indicted for the murder of the murder of Frank Clute, for the first time since the jury in County Court disagreed as to the young man's guilt. It was learned arrangements are being made to obtain a change of venue for his second trial.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gifford denied the boy needed any such watching as the sheriff said he was going to subject him to.

"Of course 'ma' is disappointed, so are we all," said the father. "We confidently expected an acquittal. But it is nonsense to say there is any danger of this boy doing anything foolish."

NEW WITNESS SAW WOMAN NEAR OFFICE AS SHOT WAS FIRED

tively to every question put to the child. She said that she had been playing the piano on the night of the murder, that her mother told her to stop and that she then sat in the big chair in the front room.

The coroner then spoke a second time by asking:

"Well, I told you to say you were sitting in the big chair!"

The child said that she could not remember.

"Wasn't Mr. Levy and your father?" Attorney Levy is counsel for Mrs. Carman.

"It was Mr. Levy."

"If your mother said you were in bed she was mistaken."

"Yes, I was down stairs."

The child said that when she went up stairs she saw her mother in her nightclothes in her room at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Powell, coming down the stairs.

STORY OF INSURANCE AGENT.

T. Burden, an insurance agent, followed the Carman child on the stand. He said that he passed the Carman home on the night of the murder and had just turned back toward his own home when he heard a noise like the explosion of an automobile tire.

"I saw a woman walking through the lawn on the west side of the doctor's house about opposite the office," said the witness.

He looked through the window of the Carman house the assassin fired and killed Mrs. Bailey.

"The woman was about five feet from the window of the office. She wore a dark skirt and a white waist. She was walking toward the rear of the house."

Burden then described the woman to the best of his recollection. He said:

"I do not think this woman was Mrs. Carman, whom I have once met."

Frank Donnelly, an employe of the dictagraph company, testified as to the installation of the instrument bought by Mrs. Carman. He told that whispers could be heard over it distinctly.

Acting Coroner Norton announced that the inquest was closed.

MRS. CARMAN STOUTLY DENIES SHE KNEW GUNMAN

NEW YORK, July 8.—District Attorney Smith said today he will not rely upon the story of a secret witness that "Joe Anderson" broke the window of Dr. Edwin Carman's office and handed a woman the revolver with which she fired the shot that killed Mrs. Louise Bailey. Mrs. Carman today denied all knowledge of any such man as "Anderson."

"Did you ever speak to a man named Anderson at the dictagraph company's office?" a reporter asked.

"No. I met no one there except the persons I mentioned in my testimony at the inquest," she replied. "This is the first time I ever heard of the name."

"Did you meet any one in New York at all on Tuesday?"

"No one. I was with my mother and little girl every minute of the time I was away from home. Please make this emphatic," she pleaded in a very earnest and almost horror-stricken tone.

"NEVER MET MAN."

"I never met any man or men. I am not that kind of a woman. It is enough to bear this horrible calamity that has burst around us without such fabrications, so false and so terrible."

Mrs. Carman was asked also about a report that she had, as long ago as 1904, manifested a jealous suspicion towards her husband by boring a hole in the floor of her bedroom just above his office, and listening in conversations carried on there.

"That, too, is a dreadful lie," she replied. "It is wholly a fabrication. This is the only thing that ever happened." She was referring to the scene she had testified to at the inquest wherein she slapped the face of a nurse she found in the doctor's office. "Why cannot they stop these terrible falsehoods? We have trouble enough."

Another story investigated today was one which had it that on February 12 of this year—Lincoln's birthday—Dr. Carman and Mrs. Carman became involved in a lively quarrel at a dance in the Freeport Club. It was said that three women were also in the quarrel.

When these women were was not made known. But it is declared that Mrs. Carman took violent exception to the doctor's attention to one of them.

WIFE SHOWS JEALOUSY.

Former Judge Wallace told a reporter he was at the club that night, but not at the dance. He says that it was the general talk of the club and subsequently of all the village, but he did not see the quarrel. He added that he had never seen Mrs. Carman.

Dr. Carman was quite frank today in his views on the case.

"I guess until that there may be a arrest," he said. "I know that numerous rooms in Mrs. Carman's house were torn arrested long ago had they the evidence on which such action could be based. I believe that the bullet was intended to scare Mrs. Carman, but I did not think Dr. Bailey. And let all tales of difficulty between Mrs. Carman and me cease. We had trouble once. All is happy now."

Mrs. Elizabeth Valentine, the nurse whom Mrs. Carman slapped one night in the doctor's office, declared that she would not tell what she knew "for various reasons."

The story of the alleged accomplice, whose name the police are trying keeping in close secrecy, to the effect that he knows all about the shooting of Mrs. Bailey. He says Anderson, whom he accuses as an accomplice, is in Kansas City.

"Anderson broke the window and a woman fired the shot," he declared. It is believed he named the woman. "Anderson had been hired for $50 to do the job, but the woman decided to do it herself."

He asserted that he and Anderson met the woman seven weeks ago when she was negotiating for a dictagraph. They continued their acquaintance, he claimed, until about two days ago, when she sent them word to come to Freeport.

The authorities are not inclined to place complete credence in the man's story. Why he should tell it is not apparent to them. Meanwhile, his story is today being investigated.

Detective W. J. Burns, who first appeared in the case when he and his men re-enacted the slaying of Mrs. Bailey in the Carman home, also declared that his office in Kansas City had been instructed to keep an eye on "Joe."

When the coroner's inquest into the murder was resumed here today several important witnesses appeared to testify.

Among them were George Boissonault, manager of the division of the company that manufactured the telephonic instrument which Mrs. Carman had installed in her husband's office. Another witness will be the man who installed the instrument in the physician's office.

In a statement today, Coroner Norton declared it was highly possible he might hold some one for the slaying before the conclusion of the inquest. He added that he may decide upon a verdict before night.

It was said today that detectives had found the place where the revolver with which Mrs. Bailey was killed was bought.

Asks $200 for 'Home Sweet Home' Heirs

NEW YORK, July 8.—John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home," who was at one time United States consul at Tunis and who died before his accounts with the government could be straightened out, is due $200 on this account. Senator McLean of Connecticut has introduced a bill to pay to the heirs of this claim.

"Doctor's Wife Has Most Jealousy Cause" Viola Rodgers Finds

By VIOLA RODGERS.

FREEPORT, L. I., July 8.—"The only evidence the District Attorney has upon which to indict Mrs. Carman is the fact that she installed a dictagraph in her house some weeks before Mrs. Bailey was shot. Would that be sufficient evidence for you?"

The above question was asked me yesterday by Attorney George M. Levy, counsel for Mrs. Carman.

"Do you suppose I ask other women if they believe a jealousy that led to the installment of a dictagraph in her bedroom connecting with her husband's office would be so unusual as to close to justify belief that Mrs. Carman took Mrs. Bailey's life?

Is jealousy a rare quality with womankind or is it dormant in all feminine hearts, showing itself whenever occasion is presented?

Are doctors' wives prone to suspicion and jealousy, even the most tired of them?

Most women never face the truth about themselves.

NORMAL WOMAN JEALOUS.

Every normal woman is jealous in a great or small degree. She forgives many things of beauty and youth who has found man an easy conquest will be the one most keenly suspicious when that beauty is on her side.

I have known women whose entire dispositions have changed in a few weeks from sweetness to shrewishness. Most beauty parlors are maintained and supported solely by women in their fortnightly visits.

What torture such beauties will undergo, both physical and mental, with that declining beauty these women, if married to a man of masculine charm, become sometimes obsessed with a jealousy that is almost fiendish. Insanity has developed in women who have known the latest.

That dictagraphs have not been installed in the homes of more women is because dictagraphs are a new form of detective, and married men would read the story of Mrs. Carman with an "Ah, ha!" or an "Ah, believe her to be without culture. That is not true.

I can recall at least fifteen women, all apparently living in harmony with their husbands and children, who have at one time or another employed detectives on watch their husbands. None of them has an idea of divorce.

MANY EMPLOY DETECTIVES.

But one woman said to me, "I am eaten up with jealousy. Why shouldn't I be suspicious when every woman I know tells me how handsome my husband has grown since he has gotten a little gray on his temples and has filled out.

"I have also gotten a little gray and have filled out, and what do they tell me, 'You are a perfect sight, Madam, yourself, and why don't you brush up your hair.' It would make you so much younger looking.' And I am four years younger than my husband, and I am only forty," she added. "How can I help being suspicious and jealous. Any woman would."

It seems petty enough, doesn't it? And it is, but we are all very human and very much women, and in being women we must suffer from the effects and virtues alike of our sex if we would remain "very much women."

A doctor's wife naturally has much more cause for jealousy than many other wives. A doctor must have personal charm and a manner to calm the confidence of his patients. After all, half the cure lies in the state of mind a sick woman develops through her visits to her doctor.

JEALOUSY IN LOVE.

The intimacy of these professional services are not lost on the wife. She conjures in her mind the most alluring pictures of her husband's visits to various woman patients.

Nurses, too, always trim and neat in spotless attire, are another source of jealousy. Out-of-town calls accompanied by a pretty nurse are sometimes more than the doctor's wife can bear in silence. Some have been known to send detectives on such trails.

If the woman is in her forties, as most successful doctor's wives are—for it takes twenty years or more for a man to be placed so he can be comfortable practice—then the jealousy is more poignant.

It has led to murder, divorce lots, anonymous miseries, to every category of unhappiness that a jealous woman mind can conceive.

Can it lead to murder? It might, but that one degree above divorce is to be found in the love of every woman.

It is part and parcel of it. No love is so noble with a woman that she willingly relinquishes it in favor of another woman. If she does, then she has ceased to love.

Dog's Hair Clew in Slaying of Woman

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 8.—In an attempt to solve the Mohawk River murder mystery police today are seeking a butcher with an Airedale dog. This investigation follows the discovery of Airedale hairs on the handkerchief knotted about the head of the woman victim.

CARRANZA AND HUERTA MEN TO PLAN PEACE

By LAWRENCE TODD.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Direct negotiations for peace between the Constitutionalists and the Huerta government of Mexico will be started in New York within a few days. A provisional president will be chosen here, the Huerta delegates taking it for granted that they will have no serious difficulty in agreeing with the Carranza delegates upon the name of the man. A general amnesty will be declared throughout Mexico as a preliminary to the peaceful transfer of the government from the old to the new provisional control.

Private property will be left intact and all mob violence by soldiers of either faction will be severely repressed by the leaders of both sides. Such, in outline, was the statement made today by Senor Augustin Rodriguez, one of the three representatives of the Huerta government and for forty years a leader of the Mexican bar.

"There is no wish in the minds of either Constitutionalists or leaders," he said, "to loot and kill if they reach Mexico City or attain power, but we believe that their common soldiers cannot be held in check. We want it stopped by peaceful conference. I am sure that a man for the provisional presidency can and will be elected by the delegates here without undue delay."

Save Six Boston Men from Yacht

Six Boston men had a narrow escape from drowning when the sloop yacht Norma went to pieces on a reef near Cape Elizabeth, Me., according to a dispatch from Portland. The men were swept in a rowboat. It was at first reported the yacht was the Norma II, owned by Herbert A. MacIntire of the Boston Yacht Club and former Malden High School athlete. Mr. MacIntire said his craft was anchored in Winchester Bay. There is a steam yacht Norma, owned by Dwight Blaney of Weston, whose Summer home is at Har Harbor. There are several other yachts bearing the same name.

Hold Youth Who Ran Away with Girl

Percy Vreeland, who ran away and who was brought back from New York to face a white slave charge, was arraigned today in the Dorchester Court and held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury. He asked permission to see the girl, but was refused. Miss Wright is on probation as a stubborn child.

WOULD EXEMPT LABOR FROM SHERMAN LAW

Senator Hollis of New Hampshire, in two letters from Washington to a Boston banker, enthusiastically supports the new law exempting labor and agricultural organizations from the operation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The banker had written the Senator expressing astonishment at the action of Congress in passing the labor-farmer exemption bill. In his reply the Senator wrote:

"You very naturally take the capitalist's view of labor and agricultural organizations. It is equally natural for me to take the opposite view.

"It seems to me that the labor union man is the under dog in the fight between labor and capital, and I believe in giving all the help I can consistently with the Constitution.

"The reason labor is entitled to exemption that capital is not is this: Capital is property and represents only property rights, while labor represents human rights. Human rights are above property right and should receive the first consideration. That seems to me very plain.

"This sort of legislation will not bring disaster upon the country. I have heard that prophecy made of every important bill that has been passed by the Senate since I have been here, but we seem to get along about the same as we did a year ago.

"Of course I did not expect you or any other banker or broker to approve of my attitude on the Stock Exchange bill. Here again my attitude has been in accordance with views I have been promulgating in New Hampshire for the past fourteen years. Business men in New Hampshire who agree with you certainly ground themselves at the last session of the legislature to defeat me, but I seemed to pull through and I shall keep along the lines I announced before I was elected."

FIRE DESTROYS CLOTHING SHOP AT HINGHAM

The Hingham factory of the Rhodes & Ripley Clothing Company of Boston was burned to the ground today with a loss estimated at $50,000. Ninety were employed at the plant, which was located at Hingham Centre.

The entire Hingham fire department was called out. The flames were discovered about 6 a. m. after they had gained great headway. Employes who were on their way to work in the factory assisted the firemen.

Just how the fire started was not known. At the offices of the company at No. 72 Lincoln street, Boston, it was declared that the fire was not of incendiary origin.

The plant was well stocked with finished goods for the Fall trade. The machinery, 3,000 coats, 5,500 vests and 4,000 pairs of trousers were destroyed.

GEN. HUNTER'S BODY FOUND IN EMPRESS HULK

MONTREAL, P. Q., July 8.—Two bodies were recovered today from the sunken Empress of Ireland off Rimouski, when divers went down to begin the operations of salvaging the bullion the vessel carried.

The bodies were those of Brigadier-General Hunter of the Indian army, and his son. His wife's body was picked up the morning after the Empress sank. A daughter was also drowned and her body has not yet been recovered.

There was $2,000,000 worth of silver on the Empress, and the divers today set to work cutting a hole ten feet square through her hull to reach the treasure. There are seventy-nine bars of silver in the vessel's strong room.

Squantum Bungalow Destroyed by Fire

Fire destroyed the four-room bungalow of Abraham Jacobson today at Squantum. Owing to a high wind two alarms were sounded. For a while the thickly settled colony here was threatened and many of the tenants prepared to move. The loss was $1,000. Sparks from the fireplace caused the fire.

Grant Only Few Full Increases in Rates

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Chairman Harlan of the Interstate Commerce Comission has booked passage for Europe on July 24, and the rate decision, it is said, may not be ready much before then. It is understood the full increase asked for will be granted on only a few classes of merchandise.

MRS. ELDRIDGE TELLS WHY SHE SUES WOMAN

Unusual domestic complications which estranged a couple after thirty-five years of married life, are made public by the $10,000 suit brought by Mrs. Georgie E. Eldridge of No. 62 Linwood street, Malden, against Miss Emilie B. Meek of No. 19 Hillside Park, for alleged alienation of the affections of Horace W. Eldridge.

Here are some of the wife's allegations:

That all mentioned are over fifty-five years old.

That Mrs. Eldridge has to go out washing to support herself, although her husband has a furniture store, a bank account and an automobile.

That Miss Meek lived with the Eldridges, works for Eldridge as bookkeeper in his store and went to their Summer cottage at Cape Cod.

That Eldridge is completely under the domination of Miss Meek.

That he cares more for Miss Meek's little finger than he does for his wife's whole body.

That he doesn't "dare move without Miss Meek's permission."

That he takes her out in his auto and lets his wife walk.

That Mrs. Eldridge cooks her husband's meals, but that they do not speak to each other.

That they have two grown-up sons.

That Eldridge hasn't given his wife "more than seventy-five cents a week in years," and recently cut of that much.

That he threatens to will all he has to his bookkeeper.

Mrs. Eldridge tearfully told this story today:

"My husband has known Miss Meek nearly twenty years. She is associated withhim in business, and also does a small real estate business from my husband's store.

"We have been married thirty-five years and have two grown-up sons, Clarence H. and Horace W. Eldridge, Jr., both of Malden. I have been obliged to go out to work and take in washings to clothe myself properly.

"I have seen Miss Meek kiss my husband. When I remonstrated with him or it he only laughed and said I was foolish to object to a little thing like that.

"In all the years of our married life my husband never gave me more than seventy-five cents a week, and in recent years he has taken even that. He has lots of money, but he never tells me how much. He used to tell me all about his business affairs.

ORDERED WOMAN OUT.

"Several years ago my husband brought Miss Meek here to board. She stayed for three or four years and tried to run the house until I ordered her to leave. Finally I had to send for the sheriff.

"My husband and I almost never speak to each other under our own roof and haven't for many years. He has never asked me to ride with him in his auto. He takes Miss Meek everywhere."

'INQUEST WILL FREE ME,' SAYS MRS. ANGLE

STAMFORD, Ct., July 8. — Mrs. Helen M. Angle is confident of a speedy acquittal and today declared she expected to be completely exonerated by Coroner Phelan when he resumes the inquest on the death of Waldo E. Bailey, in a statement to Mrs. Zenaphina Kisbee, the police matron, she said.

"I am stronger and contented now and I hope the coroner will finish his inquest soon. I want my exoneration to be complete and I expect to be able to leave here when he finishes the inquest.

"I have nothing to fear. My story, when it is told, will clear me of all blame in connection with Mr. Bailey's death. I never quarreled with Mr. Bailey. Next to my father I regarded him as the best friend I had.

"There was nobody in my apartment on the night Mr. Bailey was slain and he had no cause to be jealous of any man as far as I was concerned. He was the only man in which I had more than a passing interest except my father."

Mrs. Angle has not been removed to the county jail and Chief Brennan says that if her friends and relatives continue to observe the regulations, he will not press his request to have her removed.

Mrs. Angle is confined in the steel barred cage and cell room at all times except during her two daily interviews with her father. Chief Brennan granted her request to be allowed to see her father in the dormitory.

WALSH ON WAY TO THE CAPITAL FOR SALEM FUND

Governor Walsh started for Washington early today to urge upon Congress the need of an appropriation of $200,000 for relief of the Salem fire sufferers. He has an appointment to meet President Wilson this afternoon.

The Relief Committee estimates $200,000 will be needed to rehabilitate all the burned-out families.

This is "Carnation Day" for the Massachusetts Federation of Progressive Women, who are selling carnations for the benefit of the Salem fire sufferers. More than 300 young women are seeking to dispose of 100,000 about the city.

They are posted on the principal streets, at the entrances and exits of the subways and tunnels, at Rowe's Wharf, the North and South Stations and at the public places. Supply stations are located at the Haymarket Hotel, Quincy House, Hotel Essex, the Vendome and the Adams House. Prominent women are on hand at these stations to act as chaperones.

Although the Salem Board of Assessors has not yet made public the loss on buildings burned, it is learned from people who have made informal canvass that the value is likely to exceed $5,000,000. Loss on the contents of all the factories and houses will, according to conservative estimates, aggregate $7,000,000, making the total loss about $12,000,000.

GIRL AIDS FIRE FUND BY SALE OF LEMONADE

DORIS EDWARDS, aged thirteen, who opened a lemonade stand on the lawn of her Brookline home to help Salem fire sufferers.

To help the Salem fire sufferers Miss Doris E. Edwards of No. 52 Dane street, Brookline, is selling lemonade and root beer on the lawn in front of her home. She has been very successful. Doris, who is thirteen years old, visited Salem with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Barker. She was so overcome at the sight of so many homeless that she decided to do something to aid them.

She made a table, which she decorated with white oilcloth and then with money which she had saved for her vacation, she bought her supplies. He next made a "home-made sign" and a "benefit of the Salem sufferers" sign and the next day the stand was open and it was well patronized.

Doris has also sent clothing to the needy at Salem. During the Chelsea fire, when she was but seven years old, her first thought was of the sufferers. At this time she gathered together "her best" clothing and asked her mamma to send it to Chelsea. The mother did so and Doris was happy.

She graduates from the Lawrence Grammar School in Longwood next year.

Manchester Man Wed While on Auto Trip

LATE NEWS BY CABLE

To Make Insurance in Steerage Compulsory.

LIVERPOOL, July 8.—The Chamber of Commerce has started a movement to make insurance of steerage passengers on board ocean steamships compulsory.

The advocates of this policy contended that there would be no difficulty in slightly increasing the passage rates for emigrants to cover the cost of the insurance and that such a step would obviate the necessity of making appeals to the public for funds in case of disasters.

U. S. Movies Protest Censor.

BERLIN, July 8.—All the American motion picture film companies operating in Berlin have joined in a strike against the Berlin censor. The cause of the difficulty is the tax at the rate of five pfennigs (1¼ cents) a meter (thirty-nine inches) of film which is charged for censoring.

A Hermit For Five Years

What would make the greatest impression on a man who had been shut away from human beings and denied the use of newspapers for five years —what would most forcibly attract his attention on regaining the society of his fellowmen?

"Well," you say, "he is fairly certain to be interested in learning whether there's been a change of administration at Washington."

True, and probably he will show mild excitement if you can tell him there's been a big war in Europe. But it won't be until you get down to a recital of things that come closer to him personally, that you'll bring him to his feet with eager questioning.

Tell him a mighty empire has fallen, and—so long as it isn't HIS empire—a drop curtain of highly embroidered indifference will mask his face.

But tell him the automobile has been so simplified that he can now buy one for the price of a horse and buggy, and he'll probably bombard you with questions.

A revolution in China may be a world event, but it wouldn't mean as much to him as the perfecting of a shaving apparatus that would do away with the necessity of purchasing new blades or honing old ones.

If YOU had been a hermit for the past five years, the news of an earthquake in San Francisco wouldn't really mean so much to you as the information that you can now hear any famous opera singer in your own home at a cost of a few cents an hour. Which is only another way of saying that the phonograph is of more personal interest than an earthquake.

You see how it is: Newspapers carry a "news of merchandise" that is just as interesting, just as vital, as the "news of events" which the editors gather for us. And, since his "news of merchandise" finds its only expression in the form of Advertising, must we not admit that the Advertising columns are quite as worthy of our serious attention as the scariest "scare head" or the most ponderous editorial?

Shut your eyes to Advertising—and you shut out the news of commercial progress and development—the news of things that make life worth the living.

WILSON GOES TO DEFENCE OF PAUL WARBURG

WASHINGTON, July 8.—President Wilson came to the defence of Paul M. Warburg today in a vigorous statement in which he outlined his attitude toward the business of the country. The President declared that he earnestly hoped that Mr. Warburg would reconsider his decision to withdraw from the Federal Reserve Board and that he was now urging him to do so. He expressed confidence that the nomination of Thomas D. Jones would be confirmed by the Senate. His statement follows:

"It would be particularly unfair to the Democratic party and to the Senate itself to regard it as the enemy of business, big or little. I am sure that it does not regard Mr. Warburg as an object of suspicion merely because he has been connected with large business enterprises. It knows that the business of the country has been chiefly promoted in recent years by enterprises organized on a great scale and that the vast majority of men connected with what we have come to call big business are honest, incorruptible and patriotic. The whole country may be certain that it is clear to members of the Senate, as it is clear to all thoughtful men, that those who have tried to make big business what it ought to be are the men who are to be encouraged and honored whenever they respond without reserve to the call of public service.

"I predict with the greatest confidence that nothing done by the dramatic majority of the Senate of the United States will be of a sort to throw suspicion upon such men. Mr. Jones and Mr. Warburg, in manifesting their willingness to make personal sacrifices and put their great experience and ability at the service of the government, without thought of personal advantage in the organization of the great reform which promises to be so serviceable to the nation, are setting an example of patriotism and public spirit which the whole country admires.

"It is the obvious business of statesmanship at this turning point in our development to recognize ability and character wherever it has been displayed and unite every force for the upbuilding of legitimate business along the new lines which are now clearly indicated for the future."

The President's statement is taken to mean that he will fight to the last ditch for the confirmation of both Jones and Warburg.

Twit Lord Winterton for Heiress Hunt

American mammas and their ambitious daughters, who showered hospitality upon young Earl Winterton of England, who was in this country eight years ago and again last year, will be shocked to learn that his friendship has been openly twitted in the House of Commons of having come here "to cadge for an American millionaire wife." Cable dispatches from London today relate the incident.

Denis Kilbride, Irish Nationalist member, rpndiated taunts of Rupert Gwynne (Unionist) as to the character of the Irish Parliament, saying:

"Irish members won't sell Ascot tickets with a view to matrimonial alliances."

Lord Winterton jeered the speaker, who promptly flung back a jibe about hunting for an American heiress.

Women for Office in New South Wales

SYDNEY, New South Wales, July 8.—The government's program of legislation, among many novel features, contains a proposal for the removal of sex disability for representative institutions, including Parliament and municipal councils. It is also proposed to abolish death sentences.

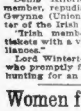
FACE A SIGHT FROM PIMPLES

Itched and Burned. Sometimes Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.



Sheffield, Mass.—"My face began to break out with little red pimples then they turned to sores and itched and burned nearly all the time. They came to a head and when I scratched turned to large sore places. My face was a terrible sight. Sometimes I could not go to sleep.

"I had tried all kinds of ointments but without success. Then I used Cuticura Soap and hot water to bathe my face and applied Cuticura Ointment when I went to bed. It caused relief very soon and in a short time my face was entirely clear. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me." (Signed) Miss Lottie Huggins, Jan 31, 1914.

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

P. O. Box 234, So. Paris, Me.—"My eczema began on my arms and body and finally spread to most all parts of the body. It appeared in small pimples which itched and burned. I would wake up in the night and scratch. Someone told me of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and the Cuticura Soap I was well." (Signed) Miss Fannie E. McKeen, Apr. 4, 1914.

DARING PLOTS TO SMUGGLE IN CHINESE BARED

A big shakeup in the immigration department is expected to result from the special federal inquiry now in progress in Boston relative to the wholesale smuggling of Chinese and other Asiatics through the port of Boston. Arrests and possible prosecutions are looked for.

The investigation being made by the United States Commissioner of Industrial Relations, delegated to the office of the United States Attorney-general to conduct the probe, is too sweeping thus far a scandal ever to be national in its scope. Officials are reported to be convinced that a conspiracy that the government is determined to end.

The charges range all the way from bribery to concerted graft and corruption, and involve an astonishing system by which Chinese of the excluded labor class have been enabled to gain residence and employment in this country.

Former Assistant United States District Attorney E. Mark Sullivan, counsel for the executive committee of the Massachusetts Laundry Association, today gave the AMERICAN startling details.

Attorney Sullivan today declared that fully 95 per cent. of the Chinese in Boston were here illegally. He said:

"The law is grossly ignored. Certificates are bartered for high prices. A Chinese whose residence is above question will apply for a new certificate, saying he has mislaid his first and these are bandied and traded in duplicate.

"Federal seals have been counterfeited and since the photographs had to be attached to the certificates, we find substitution of photographs.

"I know where fifteen smuggled Chinese are in hiding in a laundry at Pittsfield. Not long ago twenty young Chinese were admitted by way of Vancouver under the privileged class law, to attend an academy in Massachusetts, but they hadn't been at the academy many days before they began to scatter. I have every reason to believe that many of these fake students are now in Boston.

Leif Ericsson—The Discoverer of America

THE FIRST WHITE MEN to tread American soil were Leif Ericsson and his sea-dashed Viking crew. This was nearly a thousand years ago, when the Scandinavian peoples ruled the seas and held the secrets of navigation. The history of the fair-haired, liberty-loving sons and daughters of Sweden, Norway and Denmark is rich in song and story. We have millions of these splendid folk in our own land, and wherever the standard of Liberty and Human Progress has been raised they are found in the front tank, bravely fighting for the Right. Better citizens or greater lovers of Personal Liberty are unknown. For centuries our full-blooded Scandinavian brothers have been moderate users of Barley-Malt brews. Who can truthfully say it has injured them in any way? It is the ancient heritage of these peoples to revolt at Prohibitory Laws, and their vote is registered almost to a man against such legislation. For 57 years Scandinavians have been drinkers of the honestly-brewed beers of Anheuser-Busch. They have helped to make their great brand BUDWEISER exceed the sales of any other beer by millions of bottles. Seven thousand, five hundred men, all in all, are daily required to keep pace with the natural public demand for Budweiser. ANHEUSER-BUSCH · ST. LOUIS, U.S.A.

Means Moderation

Newspapers, magazines, optimists, pessimists, quitters, anybody, looking for the photograph of a perfectly happy young Governor, might have climbed Beacon Hill, early today, prepared to "press the button."

* * *

Governor Walsh's happiness in dinner so much to the fact that the Legislature has locked up and gone home—where Lynch has to be a disposition in some quarters to sneer at our Massachusetts Legislature and its six-months sessions, but the Governor of the Commonwealth does not share it—as to the more important fact that the "Last Day of School" on Beacon Hill witnessed many legislative accomplishments of the first magnitude.

* * *

For example:

The Fire Hazard bill was passed and signed by the Governor, making a Metropolitan Fire District of Arlington, Belmont, Boston, Brookline, Cambridge, Chelsea, Everett, Lynn, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Milton, Newton, Quincy, Revere, Saugus, Somerville, Waltham, Watertown, Winchester, Winthrop and Woburn.

The Governor's "own" bill, establishing a State Department of Health under a single expert commissioner, and bringing the health machinery of the State government strictly up to date, was passed and signed.

* * *

Another child of the Governor's, the (McMorrow) bill taking the party tag off the Massachusetts voter—an "act to abolish party enrollment as a prerequisite for taking part in political primaries or caucuses"—was also among the Statute Statutes this morning. At the primaries this Fall everybody will be helped from the same stack of blanket ballots. In the booth the voter will select the column he likes the best, Progressive, Democratic or Republican, and nobody will have the right to ask him which party he is trailing with.

And so it went, right down the line, the Governor getting practically everything he most desired.

In every case he did not get ALL he wanted—that would be too much to expect from a Legislature neither branch of which was actually controlled by Democrats—but generally speaking, an excellent beginning was made.

* * *

He met with one rebuff.

He did ask the Legislature, on the "Last Day of School," to charge against the railroads, the street railways and the telegraph and telephone companies the $260,000 a year it costs to maintain the Public Service Commission.

This request the lawmakers, in their wisdom, saw fit to refer to the next General Court. Otherwise the State tax of $3,750,000 might have been $200,000 less. (A month or two ago, you may remember, gentlemen anxious to "put Walsh in a hole," one way or another, were sure the State tax was going to be $10,000,000, $11,000,000 or $12,000,000. They were not quite certain which, but they just knew it was going to be a whopper.) The increase over 1912 is only $750,000, for which happy result the Governor owes a lot to Representative Tom White of Newton, Republican chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Late in the afternoon His Excellency signed the Weeks-Anderson-Coolidge-Washburn-Fisher-Ellis bill, authorizing the sale of Boston & Maine stock purchased illegally a few years ago by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

* * *

This is the bill the New Haven people say they will not "accept," in which unhappy event the Federal Department of Justice is expected to proceed against the New Haven-Boston & Maine combination as a violation of the anti-trust act.

Which procedure, the owls of legislation and finance declare, will spell a receivership or two and cast a gloom all over New England industry.

It is a fact, notwithstanding, that the Fisher-Ellis bill (so called for short) carries out word for word the agreement entered into at Washington by the New Haven and Attorney-General McReynolds, except for the provision made on Beacon Hill that every Boston & Maine certificate disposed of must bear the stamped declaration that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts reserves the right to buy this stock whenever the people of the Commonwealth get around to it.

* * *

Many fine things were done for Salem. The Salem share of the State tax was largely abated. The Governor got the $100,000 Salem appropriation he had been fighting for, to be expended by the State Board of Charity under his direction. Edmund W. Longley, Dan A. Donahue, Eugene J. Falvey, Dr. Emile Poirier and City Solicitor Michael L. Sullivan were named by the Governor as the "Salem Rebuilding Commission."

They played see-saw with the Fire Hazard bill in a way to make watching that legislation quite as exciting as the "perils of Pauline." First it was killed and then it wasn't. Finally it wasn't.

Introducing John F. Fitzgerald.

The former Mayor walked into the State House just when the Fire Hazard bill had been "killed" for the second time. He said, "What's this? what's this?" and he began showing Democratic leaders the folly and the error of their ways.

Earlier in the afternoon, Senator Ed Fisher of Westford, whose district takes in a portion of the city of Lynn, had the Senate vote, 19 to 17, for an amendment providing that no city need come into the Metropolitan Fire District without a majority vote of its Council, approved by the Mayor, and no town without a majority vote of its citizens at a special town meeting.

* * *

The House, naturally, refused to concur in this hostile amendment, which plainly would have killed the bill. It might well happen, the House decided, only one or two cities or towns would "come in." Between them they would thus be saddled with the expense of keeping up the Fire Prevention Commissioner and his entire office force.

The next step, therefore, was a Committee of Conference. The House named Dolbeer of Somerville, Robinson of Boston, Sherburne of Brookline. The Senate sent Gifford, James H. Brennan and Bell to meet them.

These gentlemen promptly reported to their respective branches that they were "unable to agree."

* * *

Everybody said that this was what wily Senators wanted, that the bill would "fall between the branches" and that there would be "no legislation."

Whereupon, at the psychological moment, appeared the gentleman already mentioned, and who shall not be named again inasmuch as he is now in the ——— business down town and, therefore, in a position to buy advertising at the usual rates.

* * *

HOWEVER

* * *

A second committee of conference was named. For the House, Bothfeld of Newton, Wilson of Boston, Brogna of Boston. For the Senate, Draper of Lowell, Sheehan of Holyoke, Mack of North Adams.

* * *

These gentlemen heard from One Who Knows all about the fire situation in and around Boston, and they reported that the SENATE SHOULD RECEDE from its Strangle-hold on the Referendum Amendment and pass the Fire Hazard bill.

Which was done.

Everybody in Greater Boston will want to know how the cute little Referendum Amendment got on there, in the first place, and this is the roll call, with the Greater Boston names in capital letters:

* * *

* * *

Against the Amendment (but in Favor of the Bill): BAGLEY, Brazeley, Bellamy, Barbank, Clark, COX, Eldridge, Gordon, HICKEY, Hobbs, Langeller, McCarthy, McGONAGLE, NICHOLS, Teller, TIMILTY, WILLIAMS—17.

Paired: For, Boyer; against, Hilton.

An interesting side-show was the eleventh-hour attempt of the Republican machine to limit the Constitutional right of the citizens of this Commonwealth to petition the Legislature. The new plan was to permit each of the forty Senators—beginning next year—to file ten bills, and each of the Representatives to bring in five bills. Beyond this number the Committee on Rules was to sit in judgment, with the right to suggest reference of any overflow to the "next General Court."

* * *

The Senate swallowed the new rule without a murmur. The disturbance YOU heard, at Salisbury Beach, Provincetown, Southbridge or Williamstown, was the yelling of Representative John L. Donovan, the Mayor of Chinatown, when they read the thing in the House. "Now," said John L., "take it outside!"

To make a short story of it, the House booted the proposed new rule out into the Common.

In both branches there were Last Day of School presents for everybody, from the presiding officer down to the youngest page.

* * *

The galleries were crowded and in the House Representative George E. Curran, of the Majestic Theatre, was master of ceremonies at a hang-up vaudeville show by professionals.

Japanese jugglers were the feature.

They didn't take the jugglers into the Senate.

Professional jealousy.

MRS. PAULINE LOUISE NEFF MUNYON, former stage beauty who has been divorced by her husband, Dr. James M. Munyon of patent medicine fame.

DIVORCED WIFE SAYS MUNYON WAS STINGY

Dr. James M. Munyon has been granted a divorce at Philadelphia from Pauline Louise Neff Munyon, the actress, according to dispatches today from the Quaker City. The action was begun a year ago on the grounds of desertion. The Munyons had been separated for three years prior to the filing of the suit.

Mrs. Munyon, who is many years the doctor's senior, said when the suit was brought: "Ninety per cent. of the matrimonial troubles in this country are caused by money, especially where there is plenty of money on one side of the family and little or none on the other. The wife wishes to live up to her husband's position, but of course she does not understand the value of a dollar as well as the husband who has made the dollars, one by one.

"The average American business man has about as much idea about women's clothes, their styles, prices and so on, as a Chinaman has about corsets. The first thing a rich man who marries a poor girl should do is to make her financially independent."

Newton Woman Pays $50 Fine for Assault

Mrs. Filomena Pisacasolida, twenty, of No. 192 Adams street, Newton, appeared before Judge Kennedy today in the Newton District Court, charged with assault and battery upon Graciano Tonio, twenty-two, also of Newton, on June 28. She was fined $50 and paid. Mrs. Pisacasolida testified that Tonio had many times said insulting things to her as he passed her house. She chased him into the yard with a razor and cut him across the throat. The wound required fourteen stitches.

Niece of Inches Wins Trust Fund

The Supreme Court has decided that a trust fund, now amounting to $26,-000, and created under the will of Hezekiah Inches of Beacon street for the benefit of his housekeeper, Emily E. Field, must be added to a $10,000 fund created for the benefit of his niece, Mrs. Caroline I. Hill. Mr. Inches died in 1885, and the housekeeper died a year ago. Heirs of Miss Field had claimed the interest accumulating on the trust fund for her benefit.

Got Big Swordfish and Bigger Story

The fishing schooner Lafayette came in today with a 500-pound swordfish in its cargo, and Captain George Peoples tells this story of the capture. My brother Sam was out in his dory and the thing attacked him and the dory was overturned. We got out a power dory to go to Sandy Hill. He was in the water. The fish broke loose and started swimming in a circle. We got a heave at it and the harpoon landed square, so we got the fish before we rescued Sam. He was in bad shape, but is all right now."

NEW YORK, July 8.—Colonel Roosevelt came here today to confer with Progressive leaders. The selection of a nominee for Governor was brought up again in the hope of deciding whether Colonel Roosevelt will run.

PRAISE MOVE TO STOP HOODLUMS AT MARINE PARK

South Boston residents in the vicinity of Marine Park praise the AMERICAN for its interest in trying to stop the hoodlumism that prevails there on Sundays and holidays.

Captain Grant of Station 12 is willing to stop the hoodlums if he is given more police for that district. Sundays only three policemen were found in the vicinity of the park for the protection of 100,000 people.

Mr. Harold E. Stone of No. 399 Broadway, who has a residence at Point Judith, said:

"We are all greatly indebted to the AMERICAN for the way it has called the attention to the roughness prevailing at City Point Sunday. Decent people are disgusted by conditions. There is no reason for them. I know of two young women, patients of mine, who were accosted by a few of these rowdies last Sunday.

"The AMERICAN has started the people thinking. If any more of these hoodlums jump from behind the bushes and frighten the lives out of the girls, they will find they are up against a hard proposition. We all are aroused now, and, if the police cannot battle with them, we'll get some of our muscular men to do these rowdies just what they deserve."

Timothy J. McCarthy of No. 419 Broadway, declared today: "There no longer going to be patient. We got a power boat to go to Sandy Hill. He was in the water. The fish broke loose and started swimming in a circle. We got a heave at it and the harpoon landed square, so we got the fish before we rescued Sam. He was in bad shape, but is all right now."

Roosevelt in Conference.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Colonel Roosevelt came here today to confer with Progressive leaders. The selection of a nominee for Governor was brought up again in the hope of deciding whether Colonel Roosevelt will run.

Cornelius J. Desmond, a large property owner in the district, asked that the noisy disturbances be stopped.

"We lived a long time in this vicinity," said Mr. Desmond. "Every once in a while we have to make a demonstration to get our rights and the proper police protection. There is no better one for the average man and his family than City Point Park.

Report McReynolds Plans Suit for New Haven's Dissolution

WASHINGTON, July 8.—It is reported today that Attorney-General McReynolds has decided to file a suit in equity under the Sherman anti-trust law for the dissolution of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. The suit is to be filed in the United States District Court for the southern district of New York before the end of the present month.

The same bill of complaint that was prepared by the government last October will be the basis of the equity proceedings. The direct cause of the failure of the government's plan to be the refusal of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to sell to Boston & Maine stock in accordance with the terms of the consent decree entered into by the Massachusetts Legislature.

Wellesley Man Fined for Scorching

Charles T. Donohue of Wellesley was fined $15 in the Waltham District Court today for overspeeding on Maple and Main streets, Waltham, on June 7. He appealed and was held in $100 bonds.

MITTEN GIRL LOCATED IN NEW YORK

Through an "ad." in the AMERICAN seventeen-year-old Irene Mitten, a Conservatory of Music girl, missing since June 15, has been located by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Mitten of No. 12 Chamblet street, Dorchester.

The mother announced today that her daughter was in New York, where she went after taking a lesson at the Conservatory on Monday, June 15, last. Mrs. Mitten thanked the AMERICAN for being the means of her discovering her daughter's whereabouts.

After the daughter, who is attractive and large for her years, left home, Mrs. Mitten advertised in the classified columns of the AMERICAN as follows:

"IRENE—Please write your mother who is worrying."

The missing girl, who was on a visit to New York friends of the family, saw the "ad" and immediately wrote to her parents that she was safe.

"Irene is all right, I am glad to say," declared the mother at her Dorchester home. "I am a constant reader of the AMERICAN and that is why I placed a personal in the Information Wanted column asking Irene to notify me of her whereabouts. No one but she and I understood what the personal meant."

WELSH, NEW LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMPION, SAYS HE WILL DEFEND TITLE AGAINST WORLD.

WELSH READY TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST WORLD

By FREDDIE WELSH,
World's Lightweight Champion.

LONDON, July 8.—It has been the aim of my career to win the world's title. I have been patient and have made every concession to get this battle.

I would have met Ritchie before, but he said I was a novice. I was his master, and I proved it. I will meet any fighter in the world, but I will be the dictator.

By GEORGE CONSIDINE.
Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, July 8.—The world's lightweight championship title changed hands at the Olympic last night after twenty rounds in the most remarkable fight I ever saw. Perhaps the most remarkable feature of all is the fact that neither Freddie Welsh, who won the decision, nor Willie Ritchie even staggered the other once.

Viewed from this angle Freddie Welsh won the title more easily than any challenger in my memory ever annexed a title of world's champion, for Freddie never even slowed up Ritchie, the latter coming more strongly in the twentieth than in any other round of the fight.

RITCHIE'S BLOWS THE BEST.

There were really only three blows struck in the entire fight that by any stretch of imagination could be called effective—and the San Francisco boy landed them all.

Once in the third round Ritchie caught Welsh coming in with a straight right to the stomach that made Welsh glad to hang on and stall through the remainder of the round.

Again in the thirteenth Willie landed the same right straight on Welsh's nose, opening an old cut on that member.

In the seventeenth round Ritchie caught Welsh square on the jaw, as the latter was straightening out of a crouch.

But even these wallops did not give Welsh's supporters an instant's apprehension, and none of them compared in force with the two hundred others Ritchie started but did not land.

POUND TO PENNY.

As hard as it is to admit it, I've got to say that Welsh went out in front from the time of the gong and with each succeeding round added his lead until with the fight half over (ringside bettors were definitely shouting offers of a "pound to fifteen bob to two cents on Welsh.

And bringing forward the second remarkable feature of the fight, For a week prior to the event the odds had been 6 to 4 on Welsh—that was I know, an unparalleled state of affairs with a champion, and that at even money choice.

But at the ringside hundreds Welsh admirers who had traveled 100 miles to see their idol annex the title, literally threw up their hats as Ritchie tanked and forced the pace up to 9 to 5 and even as high as 2 to 17 on Welsh.

And now here, perhaps, is the remarkable thing of all. Even when the final gong sounded the odds-tendencies I ever heard stressed in my life broke out, and in the minute Welsh's seconds had literally thrown Welsh's body over Ritchie into the ring and into the new champion's arms.

VERDICT WAS NOT HEARD.

The same instant at least a hundred men in evening clothes were through the ropes and over each other to be the first to congratulate Welsh.

Ritchie and Corri the referee were both literally shoved out of the ring on to the floor before the boys who were announced it was certainly not from within the ring and I am equally certain nobody else was.

Ritchie was not as good as I have seen him. He acted tired all the way through. A resident of Paris, now in Brighton and asked him if he was sure he was the better conditioned man. He insisted he felt fine.

Really I don't think it would have mattered one straw what condition he was in. Welsh was the winner.

I watched Welsh closely all the time and Willie had him on the run. Well, it's another chance coming.

Had Ritchie been in top form he never would have been able to get Welsh who was just as good all night.

PRAISE FOR BOTH BOYS.

Welsh deserves the title. He has tried hard many times to get Ritchie to get the chance at a title bout. My opinion is Welsh can hold the title only as age defeats him. I don't think there is a man living who can knock out Welsh in his present form.

On the other hand, he has absolutely no punch. He landed scores of times on Ritchie's vital spots, but did not even hurt him.

It was a beautiful contest, and in dismissing the subject it would be most unfair to Ritchie not to say that Ritchie was trying in and trying hard as well in the twentieth round as he was in the first.

ROBBED OF DECISION BY ENGLISH SYSTEM, SAYS WILLIE RITCHIE

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, July 8.—Willie Ritchie, who lost the lightweight championship to Freddie Welsh in the twenty-round fight last night, the second day that he should have been given a draw by Referee Corri, but found himself practically alone in the connection. The majority of Ritchie's friends had decided that the superiority of Welsh gave him a clear advantage over the American. Though bitterly disappointed over the outcome of the battle Ritchie asserted that he would welcome the next encounter with the Pontypridd sensation.

"I am positive I will defeat Welsh when we meet in the United States in November," he declared. "If the bout had been fought in America I would still be the champion. Welsh landed more blows than I did, but my wallops were the harder. Under the scoring system I was robbed of the decision."

Welsh is the hero of London. He was cheered by admiring crowds when he appeared today. The new champion gave all due credit to Ritchie for the battle the American waged, but laughed when he heard that Ritchie would regain the title in November.

Ritchie certainly has a booming punch, said the champion. He kept chasing him for a time, but I know that I could beat him and I'll do it again.

Of course, he will get the first chance for a return battle. There is no reason why I shouldn't give it to him. I can beat him at any time and any place.

The fighter showed any great decline today as a result of the fight. Some of the bruises he received in these marks probably will disappear within a few hours.

Mrs. Ritchie, wife of the American fighter, was the unhappiest woman in London today.

"Isn't it a shame!" she cried when she was asked her opinion of the fight. "Oh, Willie was the winner! I watched Welsh closely all the time and Willie had him on the run. Well, it's another chance coming."

Ever. Had Ritchie been in top form he never would have been able to get Welsh who was just as good all night.

Dazzled by Arc Light Over Ring, Ritchie's Alibi

By WILLIE RITCHIE.

LONDON, July 8.—I do not intend to make a holler, but I do think the worst I should have received was a draw. Welsh was holding all the time and I was doing the fighting. Therefore, I think the decision was not fair to me.

"I am defeated, but not humbled. A good sportsman always wants the best man to win. Welsh earned the decision. I know I disappointed my friends, but I could not get going right. The strong arc light over the ring was too dazzling and I could not measure the distance.

"I never fought before under such a glare. It affected my judgment. My friends cannot feel the defeat more keenly than I do. I am sure I can beat Welsh. He did not hurt me with a single one of his blows. I can outbox him, and the result will be different the next time."

TANDEM RACE MAKES BIG HIT WITH BIKE FANS

Tandem racing was given a comeback tryout at the Revere Beach track last night, and as a result Manager Butler is today looking up some new teams for the fans for next Saturday night's racing card.

This style of racing, which proved so popular some years ago, made a big hit with the bike fans, and bids fair to share a place with the motor-paced events, which are a regular feature at the beach oval.

In the tandem race Hill and Cavanaugh teamed together and beat out Lawson and Fogler, the former team winning in the mile race.

With a half lap to go, Cavanaugh and Hill tore off a great sprint, and Fogler going around Fogler and Lawson, they won by more than a length.

The paced race, which was won by Eddie Root, was full of thrills. Root led in the early miles, only to lose to Lawrence.

The latter was passed by Jim Moran on the sixth mile. The veteran had a big lead with all but seven miles he was three laps ahead, when his front tire punctured and he fell. The fall and hard riding upset Moran's stomach, and he became sick and had to retire while leading. Root finished almost a lap ahead of Lawrence. The time for the twenty miles was 39m. 21 2-5s.

Two-mile Moorian amateur—Won by Tom Connolly, second; John Barry, third; Tim Sullivan, fourth. Time—4m. 17 4-5s.

Three-quarter-mile, professional special match race—Won by Eddie Root; Jim Moran, second. Time—2m. 2 2-5s.

Three-quarter-mile, professional special match race—Won by Eddie Root; Jim Moran, second. Time—2m. 2 2-5s.

Five-mile, professional special match race—Won by Lawrence; Root, second. Time—9m. 2 2-5s.

Two-mile, professional special match race—Won by Jim Moran; Lawrence, second. Time—3m. 59 1-5s.

One-mile, professional special sprint race—Won by Joe Fogler, second; Joe Lawson, third. Time—1m. 34 3-5s.

Five-mile, open, amateur race—Won by Wm. Hill; Joe Fogler, second; Joe Lawson, third. Time—9m. 2 2-5s.

One-mile special tandem match race between Cavanaugh and Hill, Fogler and Lawson—Won by Hill and Fogler. Time—2m. 3 4-5s.

Twenty-mile, open, professional—Won by Eddie Root, second; Percy Lawrence, third. Time—39m. 21 2-5s.

Gunboat Smith May Try Channel Swim

Gunboat Smith, the noted pugilist, has developed a hankering for honors outside of his chosen field and now covets the distinction of being classed among the famous swimmers. Manager Joe Humphreys, who accompany Alfred Brown, of New York, when the latter attempts the Summer to cross the English Channel, and will himself endeavor to place the great feat to his credit.

News of Gunboat's intention comes from no less an authority than John Wieland, of Dover, who is to pilot Brown in his swim. Wieland writes to New York. Smith has asked to go with you. He claims to be a good long distance man and says he is anxious to undertake the big paddle, so I've told him to come along, feeling sure you will join this company." Brown has signified his willingness.

Reds Pay $15,000 for Two Orioles

BALTIMORE, Md., July 8.—It was learned today that deals have been practically consummated by which Shortstop Claude Derrick and Outfielder George Twombley of the Orioles will soon be wearing Cincinnati uniforms.

The price paid for the two men by the Cincinnati team is said to be about $15,000. Both have been hitting in the 300 class and have been playing great ball in the field. They are to report to Manager Herzog on Friday.

WOLGAST PLEASED THAT FREDDIE WELSH DEFEATED RITCHIE

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—Ad Wolgast, former lightweight champion, was greatly pleased at Ritchie's defeat by Freddie Welsh in London.

"Welsh is a good fellow and a good fighter, and I'm satisfied to let each man whip the other fellows fight now. I'll never demand a match with him for the public wants it," said Wolgast.

I am sure that Ritchie knows in his heart that he would lose and I guess there is no one on this side of the pond who is more surprised than Ritchie himself."

TOM M'CAREY NOT SURPRISED THAT ENGLISHMAN WON

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—"I was not the least bit surprised that Welsh beat Ritchie," said Promoter Tom McCarey. "I told Ritchie in San Francisco that Welsh could beat him. To my mind Welsh is the greatest lightweight the world ever has had. He knows too much of the game and wins because he is able to use his head."

DENVER PROMOTORS OFFER NEW TITLE HOLDER $25,000 PURSE

DENVER, Col., July 8.—Promoters here today called Freddie Welsh and Willie Ritchie and offered a $25,000 purse for a fourth battle for the new lightweight championship, the winner of the Ritchie-White-Stanley Ketchum match booked for this city July 14.

QUEER MASCOT WILL BE LUCKY FOR SHAMROCK —Lipton

By SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

GOSPORT, Eng., July 8.— The strangest mascot that has ever been seen in the world will be aboard the Shamrock IV. when she competes this Fall for America's cup—a mascot that I fully expect will break at last the hoodoo that has defeated my former cup challengers.

I am not a strong believer in mascots.

The Erin in 1903 was full of them. I think I had twenty-four horseshoes, one of these having been made by Bob Fitzsimmons, the champion American boxer, who was a black smith. In the way of religious and other emblems, I had everything one could possibly think of.

I had also tigers' whiskers sent me, likewise a green hen which came from Pittsburgh (I presume the feathers had been dyed), also pedigree rabbits, pedigree black cats, lady birds, green frogs, baskets of baleful snails and chicken wishbones—some of the latter mounted in gold and silver, grasshoppers and four leaved clovers with legs like dromedaries, Irish terriers and last, but not least, I had a magnificent American eagle sent me. In fact, the Erin was like a traveling menagerie.

One lady wrote to me suggesting that I should take her son on board with me as a mascot. She said that he was young and redheaded and that he brought luck everywhere he went, and that if I had him on board I should be sure to win. I also had a young Jumbo pet elephant offered me, and this I was reluctantly compelled to decline for lack of space.

I do not think, taking things overhead, that there was anything wanting or that my friends missed anything that could be thought of as a mascot, but, of course, the readers know the result. They might let me know which of the above-mentioned collection was the hoodoo.

Still, I have never had a baboon before, and the one which Sir Thomas Dewar has brought me from Natrout, East Africa, can, I understand, do everything but talk, including shaking hands in the most approved fashion.

Sir Thomas, when he sent it to me, had it dressed in kilts. He, being a Highlander himself, thought the baboon ought to be dressed in its own native costume, but I consider his manners are not yet good enough for this costume. I am sure his comfort will be better if I give him a Shamrock sailor's outfit of clothes.

MITCHELL'S SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

PRESIDENT LANNIN of the Red Sox returned from his swing around the American League circle in his usual cheerful frame of mind. He is convinced that he has a good ball club. He realizes that he selected a tough year to break into baseball, but he has no fear of the future.

From his own observations, from information he has received and from talks he has had with club owners in the big league circuit he is convinced that the Federal League cannot succeed. He acknowledges that the "Feds" have caused considerable turmoil in the ranks of the players under contract to the big league clubs, but he believes the new organization can do little harm from now on.

* * *

"I DID not buy the Red Sox with the idea of making big profits," declared Mr. Lannin upon his return to Boston, "although some persons may not believe me. I love baseball and I believe that after thirty years of hard work as a baseball man I am entitled to some amusement. If the club breaks even this year or loses some money I will be satisfied, for I am trying to build up the team so that Boston "fans" will soon be able to boast of another world's championship.

* * *

"I HAVE been traveling with the Red Sox all season and I have enjoyed it immensely. I like to fraternize with the players with whom it is a pleasure to talk over the games after they are played. Any vast baseball fan would probably like to know his favorite players personally, and always remember that I am as much a fan as anyone else. But there's one thing I never do. I have no orders or instructions to give Manager Carrigan. He is the boss and he knows how to run the team.

* * *

"WHEN I bought the McAleer-McRoy stock last Winter I did not believe the Federal League would amount to much. I held the same opinion when I bought out the Taylor interest a weeks ago. I haven't yet changed my mind.

* * *

"THE Federal League movement, however, has hurt the popularity of the game throughout the country because some of the players have lost the confidence of the fans. Here in Boston the Federals cut no figure at all, and I believe that both the Red Sox and Braves will lose nothing in spite of the increased expenses. I feel sure that the two New York clubs will make some money, but from the latest information at hand I understand that at least eight of the sixteen major league clubs will be compelled to make up deficits at the end of the season.

* * *

"THE Federal League meanwhile is beaten to a frazzle. It cannot live under existing conditions. The promoters have incurred enormous expense in building new grounds and in raising salaries. You cannot feel the baseball public by assuming that minor league teams can play major league ball and that in one of the seasons the Federal League must go to the wall. Another reason is the makeup of their circuit. They have too many cities which will not support baseball at major league prices and this cannot pay major league salaries and survive.

* * *

"IN reducing the admission rates to fifty and twenty-five cents the Feds, with their big salary lists, cannot improve their condition because the fans know that the Fed teams are lacking in quality. I have no idea how the present controversy will be settled, but if the Feds think the big league club owners can be beaten or scared into a compromise they are very much mistaken. In my trip around the circuit I found every club owner with a stiff backbone.

* * *

"IT is impossible to kill baseball for all time. The sport has survived many battles because it has been kept clean. If the players are sensible they will respect their signed contracts instead of listening to the tempters. The attitude of players is of vital importance in the present crisis. I know that a large majority of them possess the right ideas and are eager to convince the public that they are honorable. It is unfortunate that few have broken their contracts in mid-season and I believe that in due time they will be sorry.

Skin Diseases Often a Mystery

The Right Treatment Will Solve Worst Problem

The key to unlock the mysteries of eruptive skin afflictions is S. S. S. the famous blood purifier. If you will write for a splendid illustrated book "What the Mirror Tells" you will learn why and how S. S. S. causes pure skin and tissue to replace the afflicted ones.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. today at any drug store and taste the difference from salves, ointments or lotions. Skin health comes from your blood. It comes from the network of tiny blood vessels that carry all skin impurities to the surface.

Now, when S. S. S. enters the blood it is carried throughout your body in about three minutes and its most active work takes place in the skin. Here it puts into motion the process of purifying all impurities into a substance that is promptly expelled through the skin pores. This process goes on day and night, all eruptive conditions, even the old sore disappears in the form of invisible vapor or perspiration. Don't fail to get a copy of S. S. S. today and write for the valuable book to The Swift Specific Co., 103 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

BRAVES TACKLE CUBS TODAY IN OPENING OF NEW SERIES IN CHICAGO.

RED AND WHITE IN TWO-GAME STAND TODAY

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

The Red Sox begin their campaigning on home grounds with a double-header this afternoon. Their opponents are the Chicago White Sox. The bargain day attraction was made possible by the postponement of yesterday's game on account of rain and wet grounds.

Double-headers are usually a toss-up. The best team does not always win two games, or even one game, for that matter. But a double win for the home team always puts the local "fans" in good humor and they flock back to the park for some more of the same kind of goods.

Carrigan's team, while it has been playing fine ball recently, has not been able to put its full strength in the field. Duffy Lewis, George Foster and Del Gainer have been on the injured list. Of these Lewis is ready to play again, and he will be put right in left field in spite of the good showing of Reisg, who has been filling Duffy's shoes in the last few games.

The plaster cast on Foster's knee has been taken off, but it will be a week or ten days before he will be able to work again. Gainer will be available shortly. In short, within a week or ten days all the Red Sox cripples will be in shape to play.

If the Red Sox can take suitable revenge for the beatings the White Sox gave them in Chicago it will do them a lot of good at this particular stage of the American League race. As the Detroit Tigers are engaged in fighting the Athletics at Philadelphia, several victories for Carrigan's men would lessen the gap that separates them from these two teams, which are leading the race.

Boxing in San Diego Down for the Count

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 8.—Mayor Charles O'Neil served notice on local boxing promoters that no more bouts will be permitted until a new ordinance has been passed.

Six fights are started during the Winter with four round bouts. Later, ten-round bouts became popular, and July 4 a twenty-round affair was put between Leach Cross and "Red" Watson. A ten-round bout for Friday night has been cancelled.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

THIS SEASON WILL GO DOWN IN BASEball history as a big one for one-hit games. Larry Cheney is the latest player to come an done to a one-hit game.

THE BOSTON HAVE TWO UTILITY PLAYers who are batting above .320. Kid Ehrsfeld is batting at .333 in the latest figures and Johnny Hummel is one point below the Tobacco Kid.

THE PEDS HAVE LOST ALL THEIR LEgal battles with organized ball but they are still battle in their favor. That was the meaning of Big Dick, who came back to the Yankees. The Yanks won, but lost.

THE CONTEST FOR BATTING HONORS between Ed Konetchy and Jack Miller for first position was talked of the big trade last Winter, but ceased to be a race because Jack is hanging his Schenectady to the mast. The latest returns figure Miller batting .292 and Konetchy at .—.

CLARENCE WALKER OF THE BROWNS is leading the American league in double base hits. Crawford leads in triples and Frank Baker of the Athletics leads in home runs made. So far the National league does not live batsmen who have made as many as Home Run Johnny is leading with his usual clouts.

PRESIDENT JIM GILMORE OF THE PEDeral league announced that Jimmy Murphy is appointed by Manager Brown as manager of the St. Louis Peds, making official the trade Murphy for the two pitchers and the proposed exchange of managers. Jimmy Murphy announced he turned it down and decided to stick to Brown.

EDDIE COLLINS THREATENS TO OUST Frank Baker as the best fielding third baseman in the American league, but Chief Miller contributes a bouquet to Baker's fielding in the Athletics' victory over Cleveland. Miller credits Baker, Clarke Hering is leading the National with .97.

TY COBB HAS PLAYED IN ONLY A little more than half of the games played by the Detroit Tigers, but Manager Jennings will have to play some regularly during the latter part of the season if he hopes to take part in 100 games.

IN A RECENT GAME BETWEEN THE Nats and Browns, 36 players were used, 19 by St. Louis and 17 by Washington. Seventeen hits and eight errors were also recorded into this unusual game.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE HAS presented the strange spectacle for some time past of six clubs with their relative places during the Yankees and Naps are far behind the remainder of the field.

WASHINGTON PLAYERS HAVE COMplained that the location of the score board at Shibe Park interferes with left-hand batsmen getting a true line on the ball. When the board is moved it is expected that Eddie Collins and Home Run Baker will be able to get a hit now and then.

THE INDIANAPOLIS FEDERAL LEAGUE club was the first to announce a reduction in prices, making fifty cents the limit for seats in the main stand. The Brooklyn announcement came soon after and the Indianapolis club owners had announced their plans. It is possible that other clubs may do this during the season.

EDDIE SHORE, WHO WAS SENT TO Baltimore by Manager McGraw, has won five games for Jack Dunn's team since he reported to the Orioles on June 3.

RUBE KIRKPATRICK, WHO HAS BEEN one of the Baltimore Federal lineup since the season opened, owing to a broken finger in an accident on the Pennsylvania. He will not be able to play regularly for some time.

Yankees Anxious to Get Henriksen in Pitcher's Deal

NEW YORK, July 8.—The New York American League Club has completed a deal by which Birdie Cree, for years the star left fielder of the club, has been re-purchased from the Baltimore Internationals.

The local club is also negotiating with Manager Birmingham of the Cleveland Club for either Outfielder Graney or Leibold. If the Cleveland deal falls through Chance is expected to offer one of his pitchers to Boston for Henriksen or Kehg.

BRAVES-CUBS OPEN CHICAGO SERIES TODAY

CHICAGO, July 8.—The Braves and the Cubs look up this afternoon in what promises to be one of the most bitterly contested games the local Nationals have had this season.

The Boston team is playing right up to form, and as they have a few old scores to wipe out, it is expected that they will try their hardest to put a crimp in the winning streak of the locals.

The Braves put up an exhibition game at Buffalo yesterday, and they were given a good trouncing, but the fans here know just what to expect when the Boston boys start out on the warpath, as they do about every time they meet the Chicago team.

In the Buffalo game a youngster named Verbout pitched in big league color and held the Braves to three hits, two of which went to Whitted.

Gowdy, Murray and Mann were given great ovations by the crowd.

Schmidt, who was seen on the local park in the uniform of Rochester and Baltimore, also got in for the "old favorite" stuff.

Strand started for the Braves, but was driven to the dugout in the fifth inning. He was supplanted by Cheesham.

Byers made an error in the eighth inning which filled the sacks, and Houser smacked a three-bagger which cleared the bases.

Boston's first run started when Roach made a wild heave of Maisel's grounder. The latter sped around to third base, and Whitted knocked a single. Mann singled in the fifth session and stole second. James went in to hit for Strand. Roach booted his grounder and Mann tallied.

Motorcyclists on Big Run Saturday

The postponed twenty-four-hour endurance run of the Worcester Motorcycle Club will start Saturday night at 12 o'clock from Worcester.

The course will follow through Springfield, Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport, New York, Albany, Pittsfield, Springfield and Worcester. The schedule calls for New York being reached at 6:30 Sunday morning, Albany at 12:30 at noon and Worcester at 7 o'clock Sunday night. The riders will be allowed no rest and will eat only at the controls designated along the way.

'Fed' League to Have a Children's Day

CHICAGO, July 8.—President James A. Gilmore of the Federal League announced today that July 14 has been set aside as the day on which children in the orphan asylums will be guests of the league in the cities in which the teams are playing.

FAIR ADMIRER URGES BOSTON BOXER TO WIN

BROOKLYN, July 8.—Mike Glover of Boston gave Kid Graves of Milwaukee a lesson in the manly art in a 10-round bout which went the limit at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn.

Glover was over and under Graves all the time. When not punching his youthful opponent he was plinking his hands. The Bostonian earned the honor in 7 out of the 10 rounds. Glover, who weighed 147½ pounds and Graves four pounds less.

A fair admirer of Richie Jasper of Boston sat in a box seat at the ringside and cheered him on while he was boxing Soldier Barfield.

She frequently encouraged Jasper by crying, "Hit him, hit him." But her words failed to bring a victory for the Bostonian.

In the first three rounds he boxed well. It looked as if he would win by a knockout. But his efforts made him weak and slow in the succeeding rounds, and Barfield came back strong and clearly outpointed him.

Cox Ships Stable to Cleveland Meet

DOVER, N. H., July 8.—The Grand Circuit racing stable of Walter R. Cox has started for Cleveland, in charge of Trainer Frank Measham. In the two cars were twenty-nine head, leaving nearly forty at Granite State Park to be trained by the home stable manager, Herbert Yeaton.

Hub Yacht Ashore in Maine Is Breaking Up

Word has reached Boston from Portland, Me., that the sloop yacht Kenosha, owned by Herbert A. Medinis of No. 19 Mills street, Malden, which went ashore on the breakwater in Portland Harbor, Diamond Island and Cape Elizabeth coast, is slowly going to pieces. Six Boston men, who were on the sloop, rowed ashore.

Fall River Forfeits.

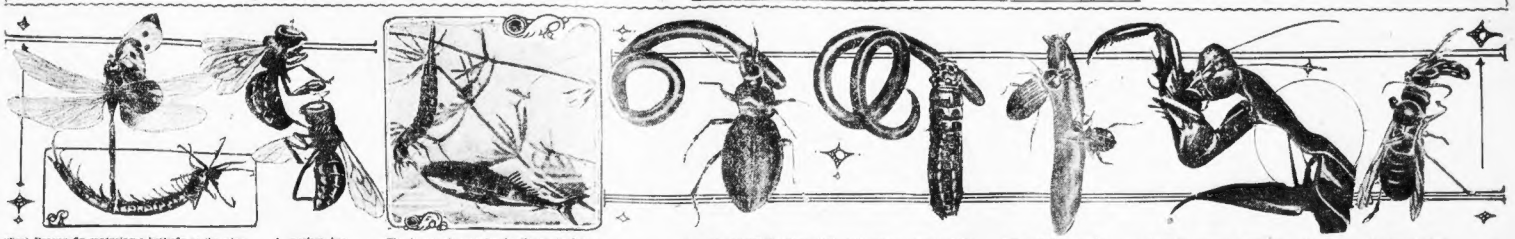
The Wonders of the Insect World

"War and Carnage Prevail There in Forms Which at the Same Time Make Us Shudder and Blush for Some of Our Own Deeds"

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS



(Top) Dragon fly capturing a butterfly on the wing. (Bottom) Centipede killing a big spider.

A worker bee attacking to death a drone.

The larva of a water beetle capturing a small fish known as a stickleback, for eating purposes.

It is not generally known that earth worms form food for beetles, but here are shown two actual photographs, the first on the left showing a ground beetle capturing a worm, while the next is that of the larva of a ground beetle killing one.

Two ground beetles attacking a shelless snail, or common garden snail.

A "praying mantis" devouring a fly. The mantis gets its name from its habit of sitting erect with crossed claws.

A hornet killing a house fly.

THE struggle for life, resulting in the survival of the fittest, or the strongest, is particularly terrible among the insects, and from them we can learn many a lesson which may make us more merciful toward others, not only of our own kin, but of other races.

Here are a number of photographic studies of the wars and battles of insects, which tell the story more clearly than words. This war is the world, of the six-legged and gauze-winged is conducted in the air, on the ground and under the water, so that the insects, which belong to an older race than man, have preceded him in occupying all three of the possible arenas of conflict that the earth presents.

A strange sense of wonder comes over one in seeing how all kinds of creatures, whether high or low in the scale, prey upon one another, not only because other food is scarce, or hard to get, but because animal food particularly pleases their palates and stimulates their bodily energies.

We see, too, with conscientious twinge, how absolutely without mercy in the conduct of all stronger minds toward weaker ones which can serve their purposes or gratify their appetites. The spectacle touches our consciousness because we are aware, but, in spite of all our preaching and all our cultivation of charitable sentiments, we are capable of being as cruel and unpitying as the fiercest tiger or the boldest spider.

THE FATE OF A DRONE.

Among the scenes represented in the accompanying picture there is only one that is capable of awakening a slight sense of satisfaction in the beholder, and that is what I may call the execution scene, where an industrious, orderly "working bee" is putting to death with its envenomed sting a worthless "drone bee," an idler in the hive who does no stroke of work for the Commonwealth, but feeds and fattens on the labors of others.

But in most cases it is difficult either to sympathize with the victor in these contests for life and death or to feel more pity for the victims, because both show acute abhorrence in us. Take, for instance, the photograph of the centipede killing the spider. Much of these animals is a source of shuddering horror to most persons, and almost any human being would crush them both under foot without compunction—a fact that shows that we are perhaps the most cruel of all animals, because we often take the lives of creatures on other reason than that they excite disgust in us, while there is no proof that any of the lower animals ever set up so bloody a standard of taste as that.

One of the most remarkable of the scenes here represented is that of the larva of a water beetle attacking a stickleback, or spiny fish. Insect and fish are about equally matched in size, but the insect's jaws are much stronger, than those of the fish. When this carnivorous larva changes into a winged insect, "ground beetle," as the pictures show.

THE GREAT HUNTERS

Among the active flying insects the great hunters and slaughterers are the dragonflies and the wasps and hornets. In one picture we see a the act of capturing a fly with enameled and exquisitely colored wing-covers such as the one named the "tiger-beetle." But the wasps are black or dull brown in color, and strong and muscular insects. Seattle (the kind that go about in tortoise shells) and earthworms are among the favorite prey of these wasps upon others, such as infecting them with a poison which paralyzes their muscular systems, but keeps them alive for months while the eggs that their enemy has buried in their flesh hatch out and become young insects which feed upon the helpless victims, such things are almost too terrible to write or to think about, and yet they form an important feature of the dreadful struggle for existence that is continually going on around us. The hope of humanity lies in the fact that we shrink from these things as the lower animals do not. We, also, may not be blind to our cruelties as they can.

One of the Most Sensational Stories Ever Written

The Yellow Ticket

Russia's Persecution of the Jews Fully Exposed

Adapted from the play presented by A. H. Woods at the Hudson Theatre, New York City, and written by Michael Morton.

(Novelized)

By A. A. WATERBURY

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

Outside the sun glinted on the snow's roofs of St. Petersburg and sought back a slow arc golden itself from the dome of the palace. But the windows of the Okrana were barred and the walls of the Okrana were built of great stone blocks set in masonry, and no gleam of sunlight answered the cheery friendliness of the young American's manner.

If he felt the chill in the air, Julian Rolfe was sufficiently seasoned in the diplomacy that an American journalist must have, to give no sign of consciousness or perturbation at the manner of the Russians. Rolfe played a good game of poker. He had learned that when sitting in the branch offices of his paper waiting for assignments from the city editor sometimes news was scarce and events neglected to occur, and then the losing requirement would be long hours while waiting for orders in a game of "stud." Reporters draw small salaries, and Rolfe could not afford to lose—but then neither could the other lads with whom he was playing. It was generally a case of "let the best man win, but "represent the best bluffer from winning if you can." And Julian Rolfe had learned to be a very good bluffer. Whatever cards the Russians held, the American meant to outplay them by outbluffing them.

The American's handshake was a hearty grinning of the hand held out in greeting, but his voice held nothing but warm friendliness.

"Hello! Count Zoubatoff, your secretary told me I would find you here. I cannot tell you how terribly sorry I am to hear of your uncle's death. I have just seen it in the papers—it must have been most sadly unexpected."

"It was."

HIS REAL CONCERN

Nikolai Rostov showed either a native callousness of character in his utter scorn of pretence that his uncle's death was a terrible blow, or else he was too pleased with Russia's cold-bloodedness to feel any blow that did not settle directly at his own interests. At present he was more concerned over the fact that Margery was to leave that afternoon for Loveden than because his uncle had gone to his last and unreturning home. Nikolai's wedding was three months off, and he was not to see Margery until he went to claim his bride. He had a terrified feeling that another false move in the case of Anna Hirsch might prove to be a false move in the story of Nikolai Rostov and Margery Scarsdale, and his love for the fair, fair Saxon English girl was a genuine emotion in his curiously modified nature. Niko knew the lawless blood of his Cossack ancestors, and he had early in life put himself to the test that his good breeding might not be marred by any such emotions—an emotion as bad at last betrayed his uncle's death.

Rolfe pulled at the quiet dismissal in Nikolai's tone, but he refused to be dismissed.

"It is extraordinary. He seemed so well last night. It must have been a great shock to you."

Russian fatalism answered him. "Great or small, he must be," was introduce you to Mr. Zoubatoff. This is Mr. Julian Rolfe."

"How do, Mr. Zoubatoff"—

"Mr. Rolfe is the American journalist," explained the Count painstakingly.

"That is no recommendation here," replied the Chief of the Secret Police.

"I don't blame you. We are treacherous fellows, but I don't desire to disturb you, Monsieur Zoubatoff."

"You are not disturbing me. I will go on with my work while you talk—unless I am in your way."

"Not at all!" smiled the American. "I thought I was in yours. It is awfully hot in here. Do you mind if I take off my coat?"

"No, no," said Rolfe with his most Yankee intonation. He guessed just how much real need for gratitude he was likely to have and received the ordinary courtesies with a flourish on his account.

"Won't you sit down?" went on his host the Count.

"Thanks." And "Thanks" again said Rolfe as Pavlac helped him doff his outside garment. In a contest of manners, Julian Rolfe did not mean to fail. "It's a little near for Monsieur Zoubatoff, I fear," he added.

"Do not be afraid unless you do not wish me to hear your conversation," said Zaborieff grimly.

"I don't mind at all—only it will probably sound very—trivial—and uninteresting to you."

"Well, then, I will only listen with one ear."

"It isn't everybody that can get on one of the Okrana, I am flattered," said Rolfe with a smiling elaboration of manner.

"Well, Mr. Rolfe—what can I do for you?" asked the Count with no elaborate show of patience.

HIS MISSION

"It's very kind of you, Rostov. I am afraid you will begin to think I am a bit of a nuisance."

"Oh, no. I have tried to be your friend ever since you have been with us, Rolfe. Why should I fail you now?"

"That is really a thing that you uncle could have helped me in a bit. He promised to give me a card to the police if I failed to find Miss Marsh"—

"Whatever my uncle would have done for you I am sure that Monsieur Zoubatoff will do for you since."

That statement might have carried more weight if it had not been for the fact that Rolfe questioned how much Stephen Andrey would have done for him!

Zoubatoff's eyes glimmered up from underneath his heavy eyebrows. "I see you lose nothing by his death!"

Rolfe was not aware of just how much Zoubatoff meant by that strange statement. But he retained his air of well-mannered flippancy.

"Thanks, you are very kind!"

He was still on guard. There was something in the air of the place that suggested to him the wisdom of remaining in a flippant mood. But now Zoubatoff disgusted of that idea and made it impossible for Rolfe to remain standing unless he really intended to project tensity into the situation.

"Thanks" seemed to be the one word of his vocabulary on which they was a real thank.

Rolfe took a chair and brought it in cordially near quite close to the Chief's great desk. Zoubatoff took a certain ironic delight in issuing his orders from a distance.

"My compliments to Colonel Kenisoff, and ask him to be good enough to him send the guard here immediately to take the prisoner off my hands—Now, Mr. Rolfe, what can I do for you?"

Rolfe felt that there had been enough preliminaries to this fencing bout. He stripped the button from the foil and presented the naked point.

"I came here to see Miss Merrielle."

"You came here to see Anna Hirsch!" cried Zoubatoff in real astonishment. "What makes you assume that she is here?"

"I don't assume it. I know she is here," and Rolfe lit a cigarette with a nonchalance he had copied from a member of Zoubatoff's favorite fencing men.

"How do you—know?" asked Zoubatoff.

"Well, that's my business," replied Rolfe, with impudent sang froid.

"Perhaps it doesn't occur to you, Mr. Rolfe, that if she is here—it is my business," suggested Zoubatoff.

A Narrow Escape

CHAPTER V.

WITH their plot discovered the Chevalier and Diximer hurriedly responded to leave Paris. Genevieve was to remain in the town longer as if nothing had happened, for it would do no good to take her with them and probably only endanger her life.

To the day that they had prepared to leave, Maurice Lindley and his confederates were already on their way to the frontier. Arriving at the appointed place, Lindsey, hoping to be able to see Genevieve in some way that the mob were about to send the house, suggested that he climb over the gate and creep upon the inhabitants of the house unaware. The rest of the crowd accepted this as a good plan, and waited outside while Lindsey scaled the fence and climbed the ivy to the balcony outside of Genevieve's sitting room.

Genevieve had been waiting a letter to Lindsey asking him to assist in involving him in the conspiracy of the red carnation, and explaining that she had been compelled by the threats of a husband she hated. She did not hear some one enter the room, but looked up, lest it be her husband, she buried her face in her hands.

"Genevieve," said a voice softly. "Don't be afraid, I am sorry for you, child," and turning she looked up into the kind face of her brother. The next minute she had buried her face on his shoulder, and Lindley took them so a minute later. Both started as the window opened, and the young soldier walked in. He looked accusingly at the girl, and intuitively she knew what he was thinking. The Chevalier, too, understood the situation.

"She is very faithful to you," he said, handing Lindley the note that had been left on the writing desk. "Don't be afraid of me, I am only her brother."

And with a sudden move he tore off the disguising whiskers and removed his wig. "The Chevalier de Maison Rauge, at your service."

Lindley surprised to silence for a moment, soon awakened to the danger of the occasion.

"There is a mob out there waiting to get hold of that letter," he said quickly. "Escape if you will, while there is time and I will say that you have gone when I reached here."

The Chevalier stooped and touched a button in the wall. The next instant the fireplace moved aside and he and Genevieve, stepping through, escaped through a secret passage. Diximer must take his chance, there had been no time to warn him.

They had not been a moment too soon, for the mob becoming impatient at Lindley's absence had appointed one of their number to investigate, and without warning they stormed the front of the house, entering downstairs and having wrecks everything as they went through. The fact that Lindley had escaped them infuriated them more than ever, and almost immediately the great Paris mansion of Diximer had gone up in flames.

Diximer himself had not been heard from, and Genevieve believed that he had perished in the flames. At first she was in a fever to escape, but when possible, but the temptation to believe that he was dead was too much for her, and she gave herself up to the joy of what might be in store for her with the man she loved.

In the meantime Durand, the registrar of the Condergerie, received a most emphatic message to the effect that he was to be replaced the next day as registrar. He was asked to return to the house immediately. The second note was signed authentically, he hastened to obey. Little did he know that the Chevalier de Maison Rouge had boldly forged the signature that had been signed to the note, and that he was waiting, just waiting for a chance to make good his second plan for releasing Marie Antoinette from a prison cell.

Tomorrow—Raised from the Dead.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BETTER NOT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Some two years ago I met a young lady who was visiting a lady friend of mine, and, desiring to show her attentions, I gave several theatre parties in her honor. Since the last party returned home she has written me several letters of a friendly nature, and I am sorry to say replied. Recently I have had several urgent invitations to visit her and a request for my photograph. I fear she is constructing my letters to mean more than I intended they should. Now, I am not in love with this young lady at all, only as a distant friend, and as I am a man of fifty years and she is a young lady of only twenty-five, please advise me if you think it best for me to continue my correspondence with her. WORRIED.

If your intentions are not serious, it is better to drop the acquaintance before her heart is involved.

Take a longer time each time to answer her letters, and gradually the correspondence will cease.

KEEPING EVERLASTINGLY AT IT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-one, and very much in love with a young lady of the same age. I think she returns my love, although when I proposed to her she seemed to be silent, saying neither yes or no. At our next meeting I again pressed her for her answer, and she looked at me quite strangely and asked me if I really and truly loved her, which hurt me very much because I am very sincere. Kindly let me know how I can convince her of my love, as I am at a loss to know what to do.

LET your constant devotion prove her doubts. There is no other way. Having won her love I know you will continue to be as devoted as ever to keep it won.

How to Beautify a Summer Soiled Face

It's really a simple matter to renovate a face soiled by sun, winds or dust. Ordinary cucumber was used like cold cream, will remove the worst complexion and in every whiteness and velvety softness. It promptly rubs off the outer veil of sunburn, dust or grease, gradually there's no trace left. The warmest skin comes off, not painful, but easy. No particular treatment. The young as evidence of healthier under it forming the new one. Make skins beautiful by washing it off mornings. Get at any drug store, or, better still, at home, etc. An ounce of powdered or "Mayatta" will make about a pint of the lotion. Any druggist can supply the ingredients. Full directions come with every package. ADVERTISEMENT.

William F. Kirk Tells About:

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I ASKED Pa the meaning of a word last nite. I was reading a story in the paper & I caim to a word that I didnt know. I asked Pa what is a Obee.

How is the word used? sed Pa, & then the Obees began playing, I sed.

Well, sed Pa, I am surprised that a boy of yure age doesnt know what a Obee is. A Obee is a tramp, sed Pa, I didnt know that tramps played, I sed to Pa.

Indeed, sed Pa, & wen did you hear that tramps worked?

Dount tantalize Bobbie, sed Ma, you know Wary well that a Obee is a musical instrument.

Pa's face went red & he sed, I dount know nothing of the kind, sed Pa, & you dount know it either. A Obee is a tramp, a idler, a son of rest. You can see them along any of the railrode tracks during these good old Wilson times. I saw ten yesterday. That was sad Obees, too. Every one of them would be that he had voted for Wilson.

I tell you, dear, sed Ma, that you have the words mixed up. A Obee is a musical instrument, such as is used in symfonee orkestrys. The word you are thinking about that means the same as tramp is Hobo, sed Ma. It begins with a H.

I will bet you a new hat against a box of cigars, sed Pa.

That is the easiest bet in the world, & I will talk it, sed Ma. Get me the dictionary, sed Bobbie.

I got the dickshunary for Ma & she found that she was rite & Pa was wrong. The word Hobo wasent even in the dickshunary, bekaus it is slang. Pa got kind of red in the face but he sed that it must be the additor of the dickshunary made a mistake.

There is no Scotch of it, sed Ma. I never knew a Scotchman to give in eeven after the proof is in black & white, rite in front of his nose. I suppoas you arent going to get me the hat, now that I have won the bet.

You shall have the hat, dear, sed Pa, but I still think I am rite. I am going to call up Professor Von Horing & find out about this wonderful musickal instrument. He knows all the instruments ever invented, Pa sed. So he called up the Germin professor & after he asked him what is a Obee he sed Oh, is that so. I never herd of such a instrument.

Pa's face was a study to behog. I guess I have lost the bet, he sed, but it only goes to show that one never gets too old to lern. One thing about me, sed Pa, I am always willing to admit that I am rong.

Oh, yes, dear, sed Ma, you are willing to admit you are rong wen you know you have looked up the facts & called up every member of the board of edukashun & all the other men that you have a speeking acquain-tens with. Then you yeeld reddily enuff. By the way, dear, I wont ask you to buy me a new hat, as I have so many, as I will change it to bet & you can buy me a blamer gown.

No I wont, sed Pa. A bet is a bet & a hat is a hat, & a Obee is a Obee. You will get a hat, a reesonabel priced hat, & I will be with you wen you git it, sed Pa. & after this Bobbie, sed Pa, wen you want to know the meaning of a word, ask yure Ma or look it up yureself.

Household Suggestions

When cooking new potatoes to which mint has been added, they usually turn a bad color. This can be avoided by cooking the potatoes first and, when strained, placing a sprig of mint on the top, closing the pot tightly. The steam absorbs the flavor, and the potatoes are kept a good color.

Two drops of camphor on your toothbrush will give your mouth the freshest, cleanest feeling imaginable, and the camphor gives a delicate and absolutely prevent anything like cold sores or affections on your tongue.

Stains on white flannel can sometimes be removed by rubbing them with glycerine and yolk of egg mixed in equal quantities. Spread on the stain, leave for half an hour, then wash the garments as usual.

Before frying bacon if is a good plan to put it for some into boiling water for two or three minutes. They plump out to twice their ordinary thickness, and the bacon is removed of their being too salt.

If when frying fish of any kind a little salt is sprinkled on the bottom of the pan it will not stick, and the boiling, the fish can be easily turned without breaking the least.

Recovered from Lung Trouble—Now Insured

Insurance companies will not accept any one affected with Lung Trouble. When you know a man who has been afflicted and who later has been insured, with action means that the policy-holder must be in a very good state of health. Those who have suffered with Lung Sufferers, after taking Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for Weak Lungs and Throat Troubles, have successfully passed the medical test of insurance companies. Read this case—

222 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Gentlemen:—About a year and a half ago I noticed that my health was rapidly failing. I had a persistent cough, a severe cough and was very weak; having, in fact, absolutely no ambition whatever. About this time a friend of mine, who told me my lungs were affected. Not satisfied I went to another doctor, who after examining me, said I was in the first stages of Lung Trouble. At this point I started to take Eckman's Alterative. The cough seemed almost immediately, my cough became looser and gradually disappeared. My weight is now 142 pounds and my troubles has pronounced me perfectly sound—which, together with the fact that I have just been accepted by one of the strongest companies for insurance, makes me sure of my entire recovery by Eckman's Alterative."

(Affidavit). W. E. GEE.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in all forms of throat and lung troubles, and in advanced and subsiding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept substitutes. Sold by leading druggists. Write Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet of recoveries. ADVERTISEMENT.

FEAR OF REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR GROUNDLESS

Thousands of women now regularly tortured every trace of unbeautiful hair growths from their faces by the use of the deadly depilatory necessary nowadays to have such disfigurements removed. Every one now knows of no chemical agent which will remove hair forever, and for a long time; its action is perfectly harmless, simple and unobtrusive. When the hair finally does reappear, it is fine, instead of coarse, and can be instantly removed again for a still longer period than at first. A few drops of El Rado, a simple application, and in a moment the hair vanishes as if by magic, and the skin is left smooth, velvety, and even whiter than before.

El Rado is now practically regarded as an indispensable toilet requisite by fashionable women. You need not be afraid to use it, for it is nothing but the purest kind for a toilet powder. Yet El Rado is powerful and prompt. Be careful that it is El Rado you are getting. Your money back if you are not entirely satisfied. Sold at $1.00 size bottles at all leading drug and department stores, or direct from the Pilgrim Mfg. Co., New York. Valuable information sent on request.

An Easy Way To Get Fat And Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on gorging their stomachs with stuffing it with greasy foods, rubbing on useless "flesh creams" or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of their trouble is entirely overlooked—they do not get fat until your digestive tract is assimilating the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements that are lacking in the stomachs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This marvelous stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol, and it is the greatest of all flesh-builders. Sargol contains no drugs, no fat-producing concentrated powders, no oils or fatty substances to literally soak up the fat-producing elements in your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue in your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, how your whole body takes on curves and bust disappear and you take on the full, rich, rounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, economical, efficient. Your druggist has it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were quite active today and irregularly, but privileged up to afternoon news in New York a number of issues were at their low for the day, almost Pacific had been at its low for the day, almost Pacific had been at its low price at 12, but recovered to 22¼ at 1234. There were renewed rumors in circulation regarding the road's financial disposition. Rumor & Texas preferred declined 2 to 46. Chesapeake & Ohio declined 1 and among other declines were Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Reading, Canadian Pacific, Southern Railway, Louisville & Nashville, Atlantic Coast Line, Rock Island preferred, Kansas & Texas preferred and Wabash preferred. Steel common rallied from its low of 58¾ at 59¾, Boston & Maine 2, New Haven 1, Erie & Pittsburgh 1, Canada Southern 1, Atchison 1 and Reading 1. Utilities were up to 1 and Brooklyn Rapid Transit 1 point.

STOCKS QUIET AT START.

Trading in stocks moved slowly at the opening today, and for a time a quiet, passive, professional tone generally prevailed. Where prices rose it was slightly and where they declined the losses were seldom more than fractional. The optimistic view which still exists in underlying circumstances, however, found little desire to take much chance in speculation, so that the market moved for the most part within narrow limits. Interest appeared a little keener in the specialties of the active list, and Steel, Canadian Pacific, Reading, Rock Island preferred and Southern Pacific were the principal features. The market at the start was under the weight of most adverse news, the disclosures in the Steel settlement suit were believed that the issue of events should prove decisive.

NO RATE DECISION.

Traders were disappointed over Washington, before markets opened in the belief that there would be no rate decision in the Interstate Commerce Commission case, and that the commission would defer action for a month or more. The New York market had been in a waiting mood for some days, and was more active than it has been of late, though there was the usual tendency to trade on shorts. In the line of industrial investment there was a continuance of the recent waste material that has been the mainstay of the market for some time past. Around noon the opening level. Missouri Pacific, common touched a new low. New Haven was also weak, but there was a moderate rally against it by the end of the first hour.

TRADERS IN WAITING MOOD.

Trade continued in a waiting mood. Not only was outlook impaired by the rate case uncertainties, but there was a desire to learn what company reports would show of the metal supplies at the end of June and what corn and other crop prospects were, according to the weekly reports.

Reports concerning the steel trade continued to be hopeful and the belief of one of the largest electrical manufacturers that the worst of the depression is improving slowly. There was also indications of buying of railroad materials over the extent of the enlargement demand for the war. Private government reports on the crops showed a great increase in the acreage of corn and a good condition. The latter has been an important factor since quiet trade and finance the world over for many years. The Balkan war clouds were irregular in London, but by afternoon there was a more cheering gain.

STRONG AND WEAK ISSUES.

Both Southern Pacific and Reading can smashing advances in the morning, but reacted on the news of peace in Mexico are reported. The brighter American Car & Foundry was a strong specialty, as was that where the market opened buoyant. Copper, United Fruit, Utah Copper, Texas Co. and Chino were also strong. New Haven, Wolverine and Lackawanna.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Pacific mail steamer sailed more than forty times its usual amount offering of $1,600,000 gold coin bonds. The total of engagements of gold for export is now $10,000,000, most of France. This action is the result of the failure of the Bank of France to sell the bullion in London as was expected. The Indian government has also engaged $1,000,000 gold for export.

The London money market was easier, but discounts were firm in the open market. Bankers' balances were held in the close spot was unchanged. Call money was 1 per cent.

About 2,000,000 francs in gold arrived from Paris today. Another $1,000,000 is expected from Paris tomorrow. Gold is reported from Chihuahua, Mexico, on July 1 shipped.

compared with 222,894 on June 15, a decrease of 12,119.

The London Board of Trade reports for June that English imports decreased $187,000 and exports $12,817,000.

According to Dun and Company, June failures totalled 1,161, compared with 1,212 in May. The liabilities of June failures, including the Claflin house, totalled $19,275,515.

POLITICS LOSE WARBURG TO RESERVE BOARD

By B. C. FORBES.

In America we used to worship success, no matter how attained.

* * *

Today we are apt to condemn success, no matter how attained.

* * *

And our second state is as dangerous as our first.

* * *

It is part of the modern, political, bold tendency to exalt littleness and condemn bigness, an excrudescence of puny minds and stunted courage.

* * *

This spirit was yesterday responsible for a tragedy. Yes, a tragedy, a tragedy more serious to the nation than most occurrences that go under that name.

* * *

The depriving of the country of the services of Paul M. Warburg as a member of the financial supreme court of the United States, the new Federal Reserve Board, may be called without exaggeration a public calamity.

* * *

The incident is not merely personal. It is not even only political. It strikes at the foundation of our government structure.

The sole charge that politicians could successfully bring against Mr. Warburg is that he has been successful, that he has made money here as he and his family have done in Europe as bankers for three or four generations. There has never even in Wall Street, the fount of gossip and rumor, been one faint suggestion that Mr. Warburg ever committed a dishonorable or questionable act, financial or moral.

* * *

His record has excited the admiration of other financiers. As a typical banker of wide reputation remarked to me yesterday: "He is clean through and through."

Mr. Warburg's standing in his profession is like that of Colonel Goethals as an engineer. Suppose when Goethals was appointed to build the Panama Canal a congressional committee had required him to appear before them to be catechised as to his previous associations? Do you think Goethals would have passed the Panama Canal inquisition? Do you think he would ever have built the Panama Canal?

Paul M. Warburg admittedly was the ablest banking authority selected by President Wilson.

Paul M. Warburg admittedly was the only nominee capable of devising and putting through the new currency system's international machinery worth-while inside his knowledge. Other men will have to learn how.

Paul M. Warburg admittedly was the one man to whom other bankers looked for guidance, and broadgauge action in handling the international problems that are bound to arise in times of crises.

Paul M. Warburg, admittedly was the ablest, heartiest, most experienced all-round banking authority of all those selected—not to say the ablest, for certain experts in the whole country and the man who took the lead in preparing America for an enlightened, scientific currency system.

And this is the man whom the politicians in their ignorance are driving from the board.

* * *

Mr. Warburg did not seek the office. The office sought him, because he more than any other one man was the architect of the Federal reserve law.

To accept the post he would sacrifice one of the most lucrative and congenial partnerships in the whole country, a position carrying emoluments, perhaps twenty or thirty times the salary of the reserve board directorship. He was a million-dollar man, who consented to accept a $12,000 job—to render public service. But the "statement" on which public men in Washington have probably made it impossible for the country to have the advantage of his services.

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JULY 8, 1914.

Who Makes the "Criminals"?

Did This View of It Ever Occur to You?

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Much interest just now in CRIMINALS.

Much horror aroused by depravity.

Many plans more or less appropriate for making the air pure.

Many good men, politicians, women and bishops who spend the Summer at the seaside are willing to spend a few days wiping "CRIME" off the earth.

What is CRIME? Who are the CRIMINALS? Who makes the criminals?

Do criminals viciously and voluntarily arise among us, eager to lead hunted lives, eager to be jailed at intervals, eager to crawl in the dark, dodge policemen, work in stripes and die in shame? Hardly.

Will you kindly and patiently follow the lives, quickly sketched, of a boy and a girl.

THE GIRL

Born poor, born in hard luck, her father, or mother, or both, victims of long hours, poor fare, bad air and little leisure.

As a baby she struggles against fate and manages to live while three or four little brothers and sisters die and go back to kind earth.

She crawls around the halls of a tenement, a good deal in the way. She is hunted here and chased there.

She is cold in Winter, ill-fed in Summer, never well cared for.

She gets a little so-called education. Ill-dressed and ashamed beside the other children, she is glad to escape the education. No one at home can help her on. No one away from home cares about her.

She grows up white, sickly, like a potato sprouting in a cellar. At the corner of a fine street she sees the carriages passing with other girls in warm furs, or in fine, cool Summer dresses.

With a poor shawl around her and with heels run down she peers in at the restaurant window, to see other women leading lives very different from hers.

Steadily she has impressed upon her the fact, absolutely undeniable, that as the world is organized there is no especial place for her—certainly no comfort for her.

She finds work, perhaps. Hours as long as the daylight.

Ten minutes late—half a day's fine.

At the end of the day aching feet, aching back, system ill-fed, not enough earned to live upon honestly—and that prospect stretches ahead farther than her poor eyes can see.

"WHAT'S THE CHARGE, OFFICER?"

"Disorderly conduct, Your Honor."

There's the criminal, good men, politicians, women and bishops, that you are hunting so ardently.

THE BOY

Same story, practically.

He plays on the tenement staircase—cuffed off the staircase.

He plays ball in the street—cuffed if caught by the policeman.

He swings on the area railing, trying to exercise his stunted muscles—cuffed again.

In burning July, with shirt and trousers on, he goes swimming in the park fountain—caught and cuffed and handed over to "the society."

A few months in a sort of semi-decent imprisonment, treated in a fashion about equivalent to that endured by the sea turtle turned over on its back in the market.

He escapes, to begin the same life once more.

He tries for work.

"What do you know?"

"I don't know anything; nobody ever taught me."

He cannot even endure the discipline of ten hours' daily shovelling—it takes education to instil discipline, if only the education of the early pick and shovel.

He has not been taught anything. He has been turned loose in a city full of temptation. He had no real start to begin with, and no effort was ever made to repair his evil beginning.

"WHAT'S THE CHARGE, OFFICER?"

"Attempted burglary; pleads guilty."

"Three years in prison, since it is his first offence."

In prison he gets an education. They teach him how to be a good burglar and not get caught. Patiently the State boards him and educates him to be a first-rate criminal.

There's your first-rate criminal, Messrs. Bishops, good men, politicians and benevolent women.

Dear bishops, noble women, good men and scheming politicians, listen to this story:

In the South Sea Islands they have for contagious diseases a horror as great as your horror of crime.

A man or woman stricken with a loathsome disease, such as smallpox, is seized, isolated, and the individual sores of the smallpox patient are earnestly scraped with sea shells—until the patient dies. It hurts the patient a good deal—without ever curing, of course—but it relieves the feelings of the outraged good ones who wield the sea shells.

You kind-hearted creatures, hunting "crime" in great cities, are like the South Sea Islanders in their treatment of smallpox.

You ardently wield your reforming sea shells and you scrape very earnestly at the sores so well developed.

No desire here to decry your earnest efforts.

But if you ever get tired of scraping with sea shells, try vaccination, or, better still, try to take such care of youth, to give such chances and education to the young, as will save them from the least profitable of all careers—CRIME.

Rich good men, nice bishops, comfortable, benevolent ladies, every man and woman on Deer Island, every wretched creature living near a "red light," would gladly change places with any of you.

Scrape away with your sea shells, but try also to give a few more and a few better chances in youth to those whom you now hunt as criminals in their mature years.

God creates boys and girls, anxious to live decently.

YOUR SOCIAL SYSTEM makes criminals and fills jails.

A BUNCH OF VIOLETS

— Testifying before the State Factory Commission, George Hall, of the New York Child Labor Commission, told how a girl of fourteen had to make 576 artificial violets and paste them into wreaths for ten cents. And how a grandmother and her three grandchildren, aged eight, thirteen and fifteen between them earned $6 a week at the same work. They began making violets at 5 a. m. and quit at 10 p. m.

A bunch of violets—and the eye
No longer sees the dusty street,
But lingers on a fragrant bank
Of peeping blossoms, blue and sweet—
The tiny blooms that Athens claimed
To fashion her immortal crown;
The violets dim, but sweeter far
Than Juno's eyelids drooping down.

A bunch of violets—and the eye
But darkly through the sweatshop murk
Sees little fingers twist and pull,
In endless, endless, endless work.
These violets dim, but far less dim
Than baby eyelids drooping down.
The shameless city well might claim
To fashion her a shameful crown.

—WEX JONES.

What a Joke to Play on "the Players"

Actor Arnold Daly did it. Safety at Sea

(From the Survey)

THE International Convention on Safety of Life at Sea drawn up in London is in the hands of the United States Senate. Some question marks might be put in front of the personnel of the conference, and the lack of practical seamen among them is a singular omission.

Moreover when thirteen nationalities are gathered together to consider matters of marine interest and welfare, it means thirteen different viewpoints and thirteen compromises before a general conclusion can be reached.

The convention does two things, undesirable and wrong. It first lowers some of the existing American requirements, such as the wireless requirements, and the great boon radio-telegraphy has been to seafaring men and to passengers is well known to every casual newspaper reader. Monuments have been erected to record the bravery and the devotion of wireless operators.

American law provides that steamers plying between ports more than 200 miles apart and having more than fifty persons on board shall have two operators and continuous service. In this international convention, only specify vessels on intercontinental traffic are compelled to have continuous wireless watch and service.

The second and perhaps not so obvious error is the lowering of the lifeboat standards. The English law provides lifeboats for all persons on board, the La Follette bill the same; but the treaty calls for only seventy-five per cent., the remainder may be provided for with rafts.

But what is of more importance than either of these things is the surrender of the jurisdiction now exercised by the United States over vessels foreign and domestic in our own ports. The treaty would seal up the question of safety at sea for six years after July, 1915. That is, legislation by any country in the interval must be consistent with the terms of the convention.

There may be a diversity of opinion about American-Panama toll rights. But there is not, nor should there be, any doubt about American jurisdiction over vessels in our own ports. Port authorities in America now have power to regulate incoming and outgoing foreign vessels. They can say to a captain: "Stop, your vessel is too deeply loaded; your crew is insufficient; you have too few lifeboats."

The international treaty would prevent port authorities from exercising this power with respect to safety provisions superior to the low minimums set by the treaty. The United States might pass higher and more expensive standards as to its own ships, but that would merely put such vessels at a disadvantage with the vessels of other nations. It is entirely reasonable for the nations to covenant as to the minimum safety standards which shall be enforced in all seas. But they should not tie the hands of any nation which in the name of safety may set higher standards for all vessels coming to its ports.

The Titanic disaster led in two years to a revolution in safety concepts as to lifeboats. If this treaty is enacted, no lessons growing out of the disaster to the Empress of Ireland could be effectively applied until 1921.

Imaginary Maps and Their Harm

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

DO you carry an "imaginary map" in your head, and if so do you know to what extent it is erroneous?

If it is as far wrong as it is quite likely to be, it would pay you to get it corrected at any cost of time and effort.

It seems to be due to "imaginary maps," which have got caught like cobwebs in people's brains, that so many full-grown and highly intelligent persons are unable to find their way unassisted in a strange city, a strange country, or even in their own home town if they happen to emerge from an unfamiliar door.

A correct sense of orientation, or of direction, is a gift possessed by relatively few persons. Those who have it seldom go astray, no matter where they are. Put them in a strange city which they have never visited before and they find their way about with astonishing ease and certainty. They appear to know north, east, south and west by instinct, as if they carried some kind of a compass in the head.

On the other hand, those who are not born with or have not acquired this faculty are as helpless as infants after you have taken them out of sight of their home and turned them around a few times.

These are persons who get lost in the woods; traveling round and round in circles instead of pursuing a direct route in any fixed direction. A person thus afflicted, as Professor C. C. Trowbridge has shown, is likely to turn the wrong way when starting to go home from the theatre, or when emerging from the subway at an unfamiliar point.

The subject of "imaginary maps" is, then, a practically important one, and Professor Trowbridge's investigations of it are highly interesting for every thoughtful reader. Two principal and radically different methods of orienting oneself, that is, of getting a right sense of direction, are shown by him to exist. One he calls the "domi-centric" method (from domus, "home"), and the other the "ego-centric" method (from ego, I, myself").

Civilized man uses the ego-centric method, which is usually based upon the four fundamental points of the compass, north, east, south and west, as related to the observer's own person, no matter where that person may be situated.

The lower creatures, and men also in certain circumstances, use the domi-centric method, in which all directions are reckoned with reference to the position of the individual's dwelling place, which is taken as the centre, instead of the person.

"Imaginary maps" are mental representations of the bearings, or directions, of distant places, which have become fixed in the mind through early education, or through later impressions, and which are sometimes so incorrect that the points of the compass are completely reversed with respect to their proper direction.

Professor Trowbridge distinguishes more than a half dozen different types of imaginary maps, and some of them are very curious.

One type is that in which the possessor of the imaginary map always thinks of north as being directly in front of him, no matter which way he may happen to face. Starting with his fundamental error he places all the other points of the compass in their correct relative positions, east being always on the right hand and west on the left. But, owing to the original mistake, he may be completely turned round with regard to actual directions.

Another type is that in which all distant points seem to lie either toward the east or the west.

It appears to be possible to get rid of an imaginary map by careful education of the sense of direction, and that being so it behooves everyone who finds himself confused this way to take the necessary measures to correct his false ideas.

In fact, about one-half of the mental effort which is now wasted by everybody in consequence of erroneous notions would be saved, and the affairs of the world would run along much faster and more smoothly, if people would only take as much care of their mental mechanism as they do of their clocks and watches.
